Truck Spills Huge Logs in Hill Mishap

Gerry Matheson, Sooke, miraculously escaped death yesterday afternoon when this logging truck he was driving down 17-Mile Hill, near Sooke, turned over and spilled load of three huge logs. (See story on Page 6.)

Mangled gasline pump was credited with taking impact of huge logs that crashed into George Turner's store on the 17-Mile Hill near Sooke. Logs did heavy damage to store, but no one was injured. Left to right are Ida Pearson, who worried about priceless china; Mrs. Patience Norman, who thought it was an earthquake, and George Turner, who phoned The Daily Colonist before surveying damage.

Development Plan for Island Set at Millions by Premier

West Coast Road, Pulp Mill Included

BY RAY BAINES
Colonist Legislative Reporter

A multi-million-dollar development program for the Alberni area, and construction of the long-sought West Coast road, was indicated by Premier W. A. C. Bennett yesterday.

The projects, the premier hinted in a speech to Port Alberni Rotarians, would include a $30,000,000 pulp mill and early construction by the government of the Alberni-Tofino road.

At the same time it was learned that the government may undertake to build the Jordan River-Port Renfrew Road link, repeatedly urged by southern Vancouver Island communities.

Although he did not say so directly, the premier implied that the construction of both roads may be dependent on the pulp mill and other industrial expansion.

CO-OPERATION NEEDED

He said the program would require the co-operation of industry with the government. This is taken to mean that preliminary opening up of the vast, unconnected areas may first be done by logging interests.

The premier said the development would be brought about if there were close co-operation between labor, industry and government.

In a second speech later in the day, the premier repeated his general remarks. He said the government was working with industry on a plan which would get a paper mill for the area and get the highway built.

Some observers felt that the premier was conveying the idea that construction of part of the Alberni-Tofino road may be made a condition of the granting of a forest management license in the area. He did not name any company.

WORKING ON PLAN

At one point he said: "I do not wish anyone to say that the premier came up here and promised this. I am just saying that we are working on a plan."

He also stated that the Social Credit party will do more in two or three years about the Tofino Road than any other party has done in the past 50 years.

About 30 miles of the Alberni-Tofino road remains to be built. Estimates place the cost between $6,000,000 and $8,000,000.

It would run from Port Alberni to Tofino by way of Sproat Lake and Long Beach and serve about 2,000 permanent residents in the Tofino-Ucluelet area. Another 2,000 people in scattered villages north along the coast to Nootka Sound would also be given easy access, by water, to the Island's road system.

The Barclay Sound Transportation Company has a boat available for conversion to ferry to serve this area. It would touch Ahousat, Sidney Inlet, Hot Springs Cove, Estevan Point, Nootka, Tahsis and Zeballos.

Take-off point for the road would be from the end of an existing road out of Port Alberni along Sproat Lake.

HIGHEST POINT

Highest point on the route would be Taylor Divide (800 feet). From there the route would follow the Kennedy River, skirting Kennedy Lake and probably connecting with a logging road which intersects the present Tofino-Ucluelet Road.

George Nicholson, long-time booster of West Coast attractions, hailed the premier's announcement as "just about the best news the West Coast has ever had — certainly the best since they took away the Maquinna."

(The CPR's Princess Maquinna was removed from the West Coast run 18 months ago. Residents complain her successor, the Princess of Alberni, and her schedule, are inadequate to the needs of the area.)

"This will be a tremendous thing for residents of the Island and for the tourist trade," Mr. Nicholson said. "This road will open up Long Beach, which is undoubtedly our greatest potential tourist attraction."

Mr. Nicholson saw Kennedy Lake with its warm water, good fishing and gently sloping beaches, and the 10-mile stretch of nearby Long Beach, as an integrated tourist resort area.

ANOTHER ATTRACTION

Another tourist attraction which would be brought within easy reach is Hot Springs Cove, which is only 20 miles by boat from Tofino at the north end of the projected road. The government recently acquired a 50-acre park site at Hot Springs Cove.

U.S., Russia Heading For 'Fight to Finish'

NEW YORK (UP)—Adm. Robert B. Carney, chief of naval operations, said Thursday the United States soon will face a "fight to the finish" with Russia.

Carney said the nation has the same alternatives it had when the Communists invaded Korea in 1950, "but they are graver than they have ever been before."

He warned against a policy based on attempts to reach negotiated agreements with Russia.

Arms Ships Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — Informed officials said Thursday an intensive search is under way for two ships suspected of carrying more Red arms for Guatemala, which have temporarily vanished.

The hunt is being carried out by the U.S. Navy and other American agencies in co-operation with friendly foreign governments.

Officials said the ships left Western European ports some time ago and have not yet shown up at ports where they were supposed to put in. For the time being, they added, these ships have vanished.

Guatemala has already received a 2,000-ton shipment of Red arms.

TREATY SOUGHT

Guatemala proposed to Honduras yesterday the immediate signing of a non-aggression pact between the two countries, UP reports from Guatemala City said.

In a lengthy message, Guatemalan Foreign Minister Guillermo Toriello suggested the treaty to Honduran Foreign Minister Edgardo Valenzuela.

"Guatemala is the victim of acts of aggression, intervention and provocation, from elements at the service of powerful interests which are not Central American," the message said.

Seeking to explain Guatemala's recent acquisition of arms from countries behind the iron curtain, Toriello told Valenzuela:

"In the face of the threat of armed invasion and of growing attempts to intervene by force in Guatemala's internal affairs, the government was forced to obtain military materials and equipment for defense."

Freedomites Rush RCMP

Tear Gas Used To Quell Women

GRAND FORKS (CP)—A detachment of 15 RCMP used tear gas to break up a rush of 50 stone-throwing Sons of Freedom Doukhobor women near here Thursday and arrested four on assault charges.

The four were taken to Nelson, 60 miles northeast of here, tried and sentenced to two months on each of two charges. The sentences will run concurrently.

The demonstration took place at Gilpin, a Freedomite settlement near this rail-shipping town on the international border. The police were accompanying Ralph McIntosh, former RCMP constable and now school attendance officer. McIntosh was attacked by 20 nude Sons of Freedom women Wednesday when he went to Gilpin with a proclamation ordering the women to send their children to school.

McIntosh was scratched, bruised and had his clothing torn in the Wednesday encounter.

Thursday he went back with the police, who were rushed as they left their cars.

The RCMP fired tear gas grenades into the mob.

Later, in Nelson, Inspector J. B. Harris said "it is one of the first times we've laid assault charges against Freedomite offenders, but it won't be the last. From now on they will be prosecuted. RCMP in the past has had many occasions to lay charges."

McIntosh, who formerly served with the RCMP and the now-defunct British Columbia Provincial Police, acted as a special constable for the RCMP last autumn during the disturbance created by the erection of the tent village of Polatka near here by nude-parading Sons of Freedom Doukhobors.

He was one of the chief Crown witnesses in the RCMP prosecutions which followed and which resulted in 144 going to prison for varying terms.

The women sentenced Thursday were Mrs. Mary Shertobitoff, Mrs. Mary Perepolkin, Mrs. Verna Nazareff and Mrs. Tania Verigin.

They were convicted of assaulting McIntosh and Const. Clare Provost of the RCMP.

Aldermen Silent

City's Outside Employees Vote 202—19 for Walkout

City outside workers have voted overwhelmingly in favor of striking to enforce their wage demands.

A two-day strike vote, conducted Wednesday and Thursday by the Labor Relations Board, favored a strike by a margin of 202 to 19.

Results of the vote, read to city council at the conclusion of its meeting yesterday, brought no comment from aldermen.

GARBAGE CRIPPLED

A strike by outside workers would cripple the city's garbage collection and disposal service, stop all public works projects, involve some waterworks services and halt maintenance and care of city parks.

Operation of the Johnson Street bridge for harbor traffic would also be stopped.

Ald. Robert Macmillan observed that there appeared little council could do about the issue in the face of the vote, and council adjourned.

EXECUTIVE TO MEET

Cecil Holt, president of the Civic Employees' Protective Association (outside staff), said a meeting of the union executive would be held Tuesday night to plan the next step in its dispute with council.

Asked if there was any chance of the union opening last-minute negotiations with council before a date is set for a strike, Mr. Holt said he could not say and would not be able to say at least until after Tuesday night's executive meeting.

He added that he could not say at this time when a strike would be called.

Mr. Holt declared that a general union membership meeting would be called following the executive meeting.

The union applied for a strike vote when council rejected a conciliation board award of a 3-per-cent wage increase and city payment of half the cost of MSA coverage for outside employees.

The union had requested wage increases roughly equivalent to 18 cents an hour when it opened negotiations with the city.

Council also rejected a similar conciliation board award for members of the City Hall Employees' Association (inside employees), but both sides have agreed to put the dispute to an arbitration board whose findings will be binding. Inside employees originally asked for a 7.8-per-cent wage boost.

SILENT ON PICKETS

Leaders of both unions declined to discuss the possibility of inside employees being asked to respect picket lines set up by outside employees.

Elwood Gropp, president of the inside union, said, "that will be discussed when the time comes."

Mr. Holt said he could make no statement until after the Tuesday night meeting.

Mr. Gropp said his union is still carrying on negotiations with the city.

City Solicitor A. J. Patton said outside workers could picket the City Hall and other city offices manned by inside employees, but would have no legal right to stop either employees or members of the public from entering or leaving civic offices. He said picketing would have to be "peaceful picketing."

Burns Ignored

SUMMERLAND (CP)—A. E. Trayler, an elementary school janitor at this Okanagan Valley town, ignored painful burns from an exploding bottle of gasoline Thursday to sound the alarm that cleared children from the building.

Miss Mary Fast, teacher in a basement classroom, evacuated her students through a window. The blaze was brought under control within minutes.

Police said Trayler suffered leg and arms burns, but could not immediately determine cause of the explosion.

U.K. Honors Stravinsky

LONDON (Reuters) — A modest little man bowed politely to thunderous applause Thursday night as Britain awarded him her highest musical distinction.

Russian-born Igor Stravinsky, 71, received the Gold Medal of the Royal Philharmonic Society. In return, the world-famous composer conducted the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra in some of his own works.

The 3,500 capacity audience packed into Royal Festival Hall cheered wildly for Stravinsky just as past audiences have welcomed the appearance before the society of Mendelsohn, Liszt, Tchaikowsky, Dvorak and Grieg.

Hill Folk Won't Talk

Feud in Dogpatch Costs Two Lives

DOGPATCH, Okla. (AP) — An old-fashioned mountaineer feud that boiled over into a double killing brought officers to this tiny community Thursday trying to unravel the mystery from closemouthed hill folk.

Billy Peters, 19, and Marshall Stroud, 24, were shot Wednesday night in a violent climax to the bad blood which began when Stroud divorced Peters' sister, Judy.

Sheriff Walter Irons said Peters entered a beer parlor and ordered his former brother-in-law down on his knees to beg for his life.

Irons said Peters fired into the pleading man's hand, then triggered the fatal shot when Stroud started to rise.

Details of what followed were hazy, the sheriff said. He theorized Stroud may have got a weapon before dying and shot his assailant. He also had a report Stroud's present wife rushed into the room and fired in defense of her husband.

Dogpatch is only a couple of beer taverns in southeastern Oklahoma near the Arkansas border.

The picturesque little settlement, in a farm and ranching area of the Kiamichi Mountains, was described by a member of the sheriff's staff as "just like in the comic strip." It is mostly hills and piney woods.

Communists Ask 'Where?'

U.K., France Propose Start On Indo-China Truce Lines

GENEVA (UP)—Britain and France proposed Thursday that military experts begin at once to map truce lines for Indo-China.

The Communists immediately pointed out that no one has decided where the lines should be drawn.

French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault returned from Paris with a plan opposing "partition" of Indo-China but suggesting that the far eastern area be cut up into an unspecified number of zones, some controlled by the Reds and some by French-led forces.

Bidault suggested that military experts from both sides be called here to start marking the boundaries of the zones, and the proposal was seconded by Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden.

Red China countered by renewing Communist demands for a Korea-style division of Indo-China into two parts.

Communist Foreign Minister Chou En-lai said the partitioned area should include not only the coastal state of Viet Nam — scene of most of the Indo-Chinese fighting — but also the landlocked jungle kingdoms of Laos and Cambodia.

The Chou plan already has been rejected in effect by western sources, who said it could lead only to "partition and dismemberment" of Indo-China.

The conference could reach no decision on the Indo-China issues, and the day's session adjourned after appointing a "committee of experts" to try to sort out conflicting proposals for a settlement.

Consideration of plans for the partition of Indo-China will be dropped temporarily today while the conference debates means of ending the nine-year partition of Korea.

Although Bidault did not announce details of his new proposal, it apparently envisioned a patchwork of zones like that devised by the United Nations for the partition of Palestine.

Vietminh Press Outpost

HANOI, Indo-China (AP) — Vietminh troops surrounding Yen Phu cut closer today to that key Red River Delta post only 30 miles south of Hanoi. Heavily outnumbered French Union defenders prepared for another "little Dien Bien Phu" battle.

Yen Phu guards Phu Ly, western anchor of a defense arc stretching through Nam Dinh and Thai Binh, important rice centres. The French blew up their own post at Ame, 12 miles north of Thai Binh, and pulled its 80-man garrison back to the town.

Rebel troops equal to about two divisions are massed along the Phu Ly-Thai Binh line.

Nanaimo MP Renews Plea

Coast Guard Ruled Out

OTTAWA (CP)—The government Thursday night rejected a renewed request in the Commons for a separate Canadian coast guard.

Transport Minister Chevrier said no such force is planned, noting that the RCAF and marine agencies co-operate in a rescue service for ships in distress on the coasts, the St. Lawrence River and the Great Lakes.

He said a government committee set up to study the question about three years ago reported it would cost $9,330,000 to establish a coast guard and another $3,280,000 a year to run it.

Mr. Chevrier was speaking in reply to Colin Cameron (CCF, Nanaimo) who asked for a coast guard and said existing facilities have proved inadequate on the B.C. coast in recent shipping disasters.

Repulsive, Ex-Jail Surgeon Says

Hanging Branded Inhuman

OTTAWA (CP)—A former jail surgeon who witnessed four hangings in Welland, Ont., said Thursday it is an inhuman and repulsive form of execution and should be replaced by electrocution or lethal gas.

Dr. Malcolm S. MacLean said the spectacle of a convicted murderer going to the gallows is too much even for hard-bitten police officers. He said he himself could not get back to his normal work for three or four days after the double hanging of a man and wife.

Hangings had no place in an enlightened society, he told the Commons-Senate committee on capital or corporal punishment, although he believed capital punishment was the correct punishment for particularly violent murders.

Dr. MacLean, now in private practice, said that after talking to condemned persons he believes capital punishment is not a deterrent to crime. The waiting period between sentence and execution was a greater punishment than the actual execution. There was a feeling life was extinguished before the execution took place.

Asked by Ross Thatcher (CCF, Moose Jaw-Lake Centre) if he believes corporal punishment is a brutal form of punishment, Dr. MacLean said:

"I'm a gentle type myself; I believe it is."

However, he said he has no views about the abolition or retention of corporal punishment. He said that in some cases of strapping he attended, he had to order a stop to the punishment because of the mental effect on the prisoners. He was called on to stop bleeding in cases where there were more than five strokes.

He urged executions be conducted at a central place in all provinces instead of in county jails. This procedure now is left to the discretion of provincial authorities.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

NOW a scientist claims that queen bees control their subjects by turning them into dope addicts.

Dr. Colin Butler, head of a bee research project in Britain, announced his findings in a new book; "The World of the Honeybee."

Dr. Butler identified the dope as "queen substance." It is a kind of wax that covers the queen's body. Worker bees lick it off, and keep returning for more.

This is the best news of the week. Bees have long been smugly parading themselves as examples of the duller virtues: hard work, organization and community spirit.

These pompous insects led us to believe that they never wasted time. All their thoughts were for the next generation. They had a place for everything, and everything in its place.

Well, they never fooled me. I had a hunch all along that there was something phony about those bees. They were too good to be true.

My hunch was right. At last they have been unmasked before the world as rakes and debauchees.

Drug addict! Hophead! Those are the words I intend to yell at the next bee that buzzes past my ear, putting on its big hard-working act.

How doth the little busy bee improve each shining hour? I'm glad you asked that question. The little busy bee has never improved a shining hour in her life.

She spends her time skulking around the nasturtiums, a depraved, hollow-cheeked denizen of the insect skidroad, with fuzzy bags under her eyes, waiting for some drone to take her in to Queenie for a "fix."

Now I am waiting for science to debunk a few more of Nature's heroes and villains.

The ant, who spends so much time denouncing the grasshopper for idleness and union activities and pointing to his own diligent, thrifty habits, may well turn out to be a sluggard who inherited his money.

The hare may turn out to be a former Olympic distance runner who was wounded in the war; and the beaver may be exposed as a secret drinker.

* * *

My informant swears that the following story about a self-taught driver is true.

During the late war a man over military age was offered a job with one of the outlying Greater Victoria police forces. He discussed the matter with a young man who was already in the same force.

"I don't know whether I could get along in the force," he said. "I can't drive a car."

"That doesn't matter," the policeman said. "I couldn't drive either, when I joined. You know how I learned? I went to a quiet street and found some parked cars with keys. I got in one and drove it around. I did this several times until I got to be fairly good.

"But once I was driving a borrowed car like that, and it got out of control and ran into a tree. I just phoned the station and said I had found an abandoned car smashed up."

The policeman told about his feat with every sign of pride, my informant says.

I doubt, somehow, that this self-taught driver is still in the force.

Eat and Grow Younger

Meat Bones Too Valuable Ever To Be Thrown Away

This is another in a series of daily articles from the best-selling book, "Eat and Grow Younger," which provides invaluable information on nutrition, and one of the simplest and most effective of diets. By following the tenets set out here, you can literally eat and grow younger.

BY LELORD KORDEL

The following recipes, together with the egg and cheese recipes and the seed cereal recipes, are the only protein substitutes for meat that you can schedule in a menu with the full assurance that you're not completely shortchanging yourself and your family on health for that day.

First we'll take a look at all the delicious ways in which sunflower seeds (a complete protein, you'll remember) can be [illegible] a pinch hitter for meat.

SUNFLOWER ROAST

1 cup hulled sunflower seeds.
1 cup whole-grain bread crumbs.
1 tbsp. sunflower seed meal.
1 egg.
2 tsp. meat extract paste.
5 tbsp. chopped leeks or chives (onion may be used, if tolerated).
3 tsp. chopped parsley.
2 tbsp. cooking oil or butter.
1 tbsp. lemon juice.
Pinch each of thyme, sweet marjoram, sweet basil, summer savory, meat or chicken stock, or broth made from soup cubes.

Saute the chopped leeks or chives in the oil or butter. Mix the coarsely ground sunflower seeds with the bread crumbs, herbs and sunflower seed meal. Add the sauteed leeks, well-beaten egg, lemon juice and meat extract which has been melted in enough stock to moisten so the mixture can be molded into a firm loaf.

Place in a greased loaf pan, dot with pieces of butter or sprinkle with grated cheese. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 40 to 50 minutes, or until the centre of the roast is done. Serve with a tomato or brown sauce.

This meat substitute has seen hundreds of Britons through their "austerity days" of little or no meat. It makes a tasty, nutlike loaf that is equally good hot or cold. Try serving it with a tossed green salad and a fruit dessert.

SUNSHINE BURGER

1 cup of sunflower seed meal.
3 finely grated carrots.
½ cup chopped celery.
2 tbsp. finely chopped onion or leeks (optional).
1 tsp. chopped parsley.
1 tbsp. cooking oil or melted butter.
Salt to taste.
¼ cup milk (garlic-flavored).
Pinch of sweet basil.

Combine all the ingredients with enough of the milk so they may be molded into patties about ½-inch thick. Place in a shallow oiled baking pan, and bake until brown on both sides. These patties are good either hot or cold, and make a good protein food for a lunch box. While hot they may be served with a butter sauce. For variety add 2 tablespoons chopped ripe or stuffed olives, and 1 tablespoon grated Italian cheese.

MEAT BROTH (BASIC RECIPE)

Never throw away a meat bone, cooked or uncooked, or poultry bones. They're worth real money to you for soups and broths. This holds good also for meat trimmings, or leftover bits of cooked meat.

In other words, save all bones, fat and trimmings from meat or poultry. Bring them home with you; don't let the butcher keep what is the foundation of a nourishing broth for your family. If you're not going to make broth for a day or so, keep the bones and trimmings in the refrigerator, adding to them the cooked bones and unused portions of cooked meats or a chicken carcass.

Then when broth day comes, add all your "savings" to about one quart of cold water, plus about one tablespoon of lemon juice or wine vinegar in order to dissolve the calcium from the bones, as well as to give a piquant flavor to the broth.

Bring slowly to a boil, skim off any excess fat, and allow to simmer, covered for at least an hour, adding half teaspoon of salt and whatever herbs are desired for seasoning.

A splendid soup seasoning is an herb salt that contains something like 14 different properly blended herbs, plus a good grade of salt. If the meat flavor of the broth is not pronounced enough to suit the taste, add about ¼ to ½ teaspoon of meat extract or a bouillon cube. You can make up this stock and have it in the refrigerator, ready for use at any time, merely by having the forethought to make use of uncooked or leftover bones and meat trimmings as they accumulate.

I don't know why it is, but a recipe calling for "stock" usually frightens most cooks away; perhaps because they don't have such an item on hand. But the kitchen-wise cook knows that it's no trick to have stock or broth on hand at all times, for serving plain as a before meal appetite stimulant, or for incorporating into other delicious soup recipes.

Whenever it's necessary for you to seek a substitute dish for meat (which I hope is not too often), for the sake of your long-lasting youth don't turn to the "noodle and spaghetti" section of your cookbook."

As I pointed out earlier, starch can never be a safe substitute for protein.

Here are some substitute meat dishes which contain high-grade protein, and which can well be adopted into your menu-planning as a means of easing up on your budget.

Mount Newton School To Get Higher Status

Mount Newton Junior High School will be elevated to a junior-senior high school in September, G. L. Chatterton, chairman of School District 63's school board's building by-law committee, said last night.

A $1,460,000 school loan by-law to be presented to ratepayers on Saturday includes an expenditure of $140,000 for the [illegible] High School.

The other two senior-junior high schools in the district will be continued and will be enlarged according to the by-law, which provides a $240,000 expenditure at North Saanich and a $107,000 expenditure at Royal Oak.

Mr. Chatterton last night explained some statements made by Reeve Sydney Pickles, at a Wednesday night meeting.

"Mr. Pickles was talking about double taxation," he said. "He claimed it was double taxation because the government pays half the school costs, and that the government half comes out of our pockets in any case."

"The point overlooked," continued Mr. Chatterton, "is that other school districts throughout the province, in passing their by-laws, are getting this 50 per cent from the government. So if we don't pass our by-law, we are helping to pay for other people's schools in other school districts while our children suffer from lack of accommodation.

The Hound of the Baskervilles

BY SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE

(Published by arrangement with the estate of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. World rights reserved. Illustrations copyrighted, 1954, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.).

Dr. Watson is investigating for Sherlock Holmes the weird death of Sir Charles Baskerville and trying to protect the heir to the title, Sir Henry. He is sizing things up at Baskerville Hall.

CHAPTER VI

The fresh beauty of the following morning did something to effact from our minds the grim impression which had been left upon both of us by our first experience of Baskerville Hall. As Sir Henry and I sat at breakfast the sunlight flooded in through the high mullioned windows, throwing watery patches of color from the coats of arms which covered them.

"I guess it is ourselves and not the house that we have to blame," said the baronet. "We were tired with our journey and chilled by our drive, so we took a grey view of the place."

"And yet it was entirely a question of imagination," I declared. "Did you happen to hear someone, a woman I think, sobbing in the night?"

"That is curious, for when I was half asleep I did fancy that I heard something of the sort. I waited quite a time, but there was no more of it, so I concluded that it was all a dream."

"I heard it distinctly, and I am sure that it was really the sob of a woman."

He rang for Barrymore promptly and asked him whether he could account for our experience. It seemed to me that the pallid features of the butler turned a shade paler still as he listened to his master's question.

"There are only two women in the house, Sir Henry," he answered. "One is the scullery-maid, who sleeps in the other wing. The other is my wife, and I can answer for it that the sound could not have come from her."

And yet he lied as he said it, for it chanced that after breakfast I met Mrs. Barrymore in the long corridor with the sun full upon her face. She was a large impassive, heavy-featured woman with a stern set expression of mouth. But her telltale eyes were red and glanced at me from between swollen lids. It was she, then, who wept in the night, and if she did so her husband must know it. Yet he had taken the obvious risk of discovery in declaring that it was not so. Why had he done this? And why did she weep so bitterly?

Already around this pale-faced, handsome, black-bearded man there was gathering an atmosphere of mystery and gloom. It was he who had been the first to discover the body of Sir Charles, and we had only his word for all the circumstances which led up to the old man's death. Was it possible that it was Barrymore, after all, whom we had seen in the cab in Regent Street? The beard might well have been the same.

How could I settle the point? Obviously the first thing to do was to see the Grimpen postmaster and find whether the test telegram had really been placed in Barrymore's own hands. Be the answer what it might, I should at least have something to report to Holmes.

Sir Henry had numerous papers to examine after breakfast, so that the time was propitious for my excursion. It was a pleasant walk of four miles along the edge of the moor, leading me at last to a small gray hamlet in which two larger buildings, which proved to be the inn and the house of Dr. Mortimer, stood high above the rest. The postmaster, who was also the village grocer, had a clear recollection of the telegram.

"Certainly, sir," said he. "I had the telegram delivered to Mr. Barrymore exactly as directed."

"Who delivered it?"

"My boy here. James, you delivered that telegram to Mr. Barrymore at the Hall last week, did you not?"

"Yes, father, I delivered it."

"Into his own hands?" I asked.

"Well, he was up in the loft at the time, so that I could not put it into his own hands, but I gave it to Mrs. Barrymore and she promised to deliver it at once."

It seemed hopeless to pursue the inquiry any farther then. It was clear that, in spite of Holmes's ruse, we had no proof that Barrymore had not been in London all the time. But what interest could he have in persecuting the Baskerville family? I thought of the strange warning clipped out of the leading article of The Times. Was that his work or was it possibly the doing of someone who was bent upon counteracting his schemes?

Garden Notes

Dog Repellents Hard To Find

BY M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

At the close of the gardening season last year, I made a solemn vow that there would be no more experiments undertaken in our garden. Following the episode of the sugar spray, which was supposed to make our salvias bloom but instead brought a plague of wasps, and that business of using fish meal as a fertilizer, after which every cat in our neighborhood staked a prospecting claim in our garden, I decided that we would be middle-of-the-road fuddy-duddies, sticking strictly to the tried and proved techniques in gardening.

I should have known better. After repeated and fruitless attempts to give up smoking, I should have realized that I have no will power, so here we are right in the middle of another experiment.

DOG REPELLANT

This time, it's a search for an effective dog repellant!

You see, we have a very charming neighbor next door by the name of Jan. She is a Boxer—the oldest breed of dog known to mankind, and bred especially in ancient days for the protection of the trading caravans in China—and she is a true aristocrat, with a sunny personality and impeccable manners. But—brother! Is she ever popular with the boys!

At any hour of the day or night our front lawn is patrolled by a picket line of love-sick swains, all leering at Jan's house.

The things they are doing in our garden couldn't be described even in a current best-seller pocket book. Our place is rapidly taking on a resemblance to Act 1, Scene 1, of "Tobacco Road."

WOEFULLY SILENT

Something had to be done. We consulted all the authorities in our garden library, and while they listed repellants for every known type of insect, they were woefully silent on the subject of anything distasteful to the canine tribe.

With such a gaping hole in the body of garden knowledge, my family and I decided it was our duty to run some tests, and we are going about it in true scientific fashion, with randomized and numbered test plots, and using every preparation which promised any hope of success.

TEST PLOTS

Test plot No. 1, a telegraph pole, and No. 2, a fire hydrant on our boulevard, have both been sprayed with strong household ammonia. Test plot No. 3 is a dwarf Pfitzer Juniper, with the lower foliage already turning yellow from its ordeal, and this one was treated with a patented preparation called "Dog Zoff." No. 4, a small Blue Spruce, has been sprayed with a chemical called "Chaperone" which smells horrible even to us, and is guaranteed to be even more repulsive to canine nostrils.

No. 5 is one of our lawn trees which seems to possess a peculiar attraction for our visitors, and its lower trunk has been sprayed with a strong solution of Black Leaf 40.

GUARD REAR AREAS

As a control, and for purposes of comparison, we have posted our 10-year-old David on the back porch with a low-powered Little Daisy air rifle to protect our rear areas.

While the returns are not all in yet, a preliminary survey of results would indicate that direct action with conventional weapons is definitely superior to chemical warfare. A good sting on the flank with a BB shot seems to be a most effective deterrent, especially when the subject is a little off-balance.

Food Shortage Over for India

MADRAS, India (AP)—India reported Thursday she has all the wheat and rice she needs—and the food crisis which has plagued the young republic ever since the Second World War is virtually over.

Deputy Food and Agriculture Minister M. V. Kcshappa said India, which for several years has had to import rice from Burma, is now producing enough for her own needs and will soon be exporting rice to West Europe.

Hand fans made of palm leaves were used by the early Assyrians and Egyptians.

Rescue Climb Slow

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP)—Deep crevasses slowed to a cautious, inch-by-inch advance Thursday the desperate attempt of a rescue party to find an injured climber on North America's highest peak.

Four men were landed Wednesday by helicopter at the 5,000-foot level of 20,300-foot Mt. McKinley to seek out a tiny speck of tent a mile higher on the ice-clothed mountain.

Thursday a plane dropped a radio to the searchers and they reported they had gained only 1,000 feet of altitude in 24 hours. The helicopter landed four more expert climbers at the 5,000-foot level.

The tent held George Argus, injured so seriously 11 days ago in a fall that he cannot use his legs. The fall killed one of his companions and the others left him in the tent with a six-day food supply while they went for help.

FOOD GIVING OUT

The toiling rescue party radioed they probably could not reach him for four or five days — and he will be out of food in three or four.

None of the search planes aiding in the quest has yet been able to locate the tent.

The leader of the advance party is Dr. John McCall, 31-year-old University of Alaska glacier expert. The reinforcements landed Thursday were headed by Col. Edmund Mueller of the Army's Arctic Training Centre at Big Delta, Alaska.

A radio report later Thursday said Mueller's party, which was landed at a more advantageous point, had overtaken and passed the first group.

But the weather was worsening. The wind was increasing and blowing snow hampered the climbers. Clouds shrouded the upper part of the peak.

An Air Force plane dropped supplies and a sled, however, at the 11,000-foot level at a point designated by McCall before he started the rescue attempt.

Big Gas Well Ignited To Entertain Massey

FORT ST. JOHN, B.C. (CP)—One of the Peace River region's largest gas wells was ignited Thursday as a special show for Governor-General Vincent Massey who traveled here on the Alaska Highway from Dawson Creek, 35 miles away.

Farmers from miles around joined a cavalcade of cars which formed behind the governor-general's car on the highway.

VANCOUVER (CP)—A five-foot totem pole carved by an Indian woman is being shipped more than 6,000 miles from Vancouver to Welshpool in North Wales. The pole, weighing some 80 pounds, will be erected on the grounds of the Clive Company of Boy Scouts in the Montgomeryshire town.

The totem was carved by Mrs. Ellen Neel, who was presented to Queen Elizabeth when she toured Canada as Princess Elizabeth in 1951.

Mrs. Neal, member of the Quiquisutenuk tribe, is known by the Indian name of Kakasolas, meaning "many people travel across the waters seeking her services." Noted for exquisite workmanship, her totems have found their way to some distant places. One is in a famous abbey in France, and another stands on a hill in Korea.

Oddities

TACOMA, Wash. (AP)—A jury in Superior court Thursday ruled it isn't necessary for a farm hand to provide psychiatric treatments to nervous cows, and awarded Charles A. Bogue $800 for his injuries for having been kicked by a jittery bovine.

Bogue testified his employers told him that among his charges would be two cows who were nervous. He said they did not tell him that one cow was not only nervous, but vicious.

The difference between a nervous cow and a vicious cow, it was testified, is that while a nervous cow might kick you once, a vicious cow would kick you several times.

Supporting the Flyways

THE suggestion of the British Columbia Aviation Council that the provincial government form an aviation branch under the care of a cabinet minister without doubt is sincere and well intended. Without putting the province directly into aviation, which is an expensive pursuit unless for express purposes, there is much that the provincial service could do with its present facilities and without added personnel. If road machinery can be used to clear farm lands it can be just as useful in clearing emergency and secondary flying fields and airparks. Municipalities struggling with flying problems can be encouraged by provincial attention, and if need be help.

There would be a difference between that, however, and any suggestion that the provincial government should make itself responsible for the creation of large scale airports, radio-beamed flyways and all of the appurtenances of a national air route. Clearly that is the Dominion's job, national in scope and certainly beyond the means of any provincial treasury to finance by itself. Short of direct intervention, however, a province could do much to build up civilian aviation by progressive planning and the wise use of governmental services where they exist in each district.

If that is what the B.C. Aviation Council means it will find considerable support. A national air route is firmly established across Canada. Where it passes through British Columbia it begins to serve a provincial purpose as well. Especially in this province is flying valuable as an adjunct to other means of communication. Where needed secondary airfields can be devised and brought into existence in support of the main air route or even in spur-line extension of that, they would be helpful and a material improvement. Emergency landing fields are in about the same category for obvious reasons. Both support the main trunk airway.

It is natural to reason that municipal, provincial and federal co-operation could do a better job for civil aviation in Canada than any single agency going it alone. The fact, however, is that the Dominion has chosen the path it will follow, and where its interest stops all co-ordination drops from the scene. The provinces could indeed fill a very troublesome part of the gap if they would; and they could do so without much if any extension of their present services. However it were to be achieved, co-ordination on a definite network of flyways would have to come first. Scattered and indiscriminate construction of airfields without any plan would be meaningless.

The Risk Is Too Great

THE other night Victoria police officers pursuing two men fleeing in a car from the scene of a crime fired pistol shots in an attempt to halt them. This sort of "cops and robbers" chase does not occur very often in Victoria. Just the same it is the second within a few days, and it raises a question which has caused a good deal of controversy in other parts of the country. To what extent are policemen warranted in using lethal firearms to halt fugitives?

Some time ago in another part of Canada a constable shot and killed a man who was trying to make a get-away. At that instant the policeman appointed himself judge, jury and executioner, summarily putting to death a man on suspicion of a crime of which he might have been wholly innocent—a crime moreover which carried as it happened no more than a minor penalty. That was an extreme case, but sometimes it takes extreme cases to illustrate a point. There is also the practice of shooting at the tires of a get-away car. If that should result in the car going out of control and the death of an occupant or a bystander in the subsequent crash, the officer who fired the shot would be just as responsible as if he had shot the victim through the head.

Added to the risk of killing the fugitive there is always the danger of a gun-firing chase causing death or injury to others not involved in it. When an officer fires his pistol into the air as a warning he takes a serious chance, if a remote one. How can he know where the bullets will land? Even a spent bullet is capable of killing. The danger is greatly increased when police fire at rather than above a fugitive, whether afoot or in a car, because of the possibility of ricochets.

It is for these reasons that policemen in some British countries go unarmed. In others where they are permitted to carry pistols the guiding principle is that the weapons should be used only for their own protection if attacked, never for the purpose of halting someone trying to escape. On the whole that seems the best system for this country. As some leading authorities have put it, it is better for a criminal to escape than that anyone's life should be endangered.

On Being Out of Step

FEW if any municipal leaders seem to agree with the mayor's view that the Union of British Columbia Municipalities is a waste of time and money. The reverse in fact is the case. Other municipal chiefs, many of them with far more experience than Mayor Harrison in this matter are forthright in support of the UBCM, and the factual record of accomplishment rather sets the mayor's opinion aside. Over the years there can be no doubt that UBCM has been an instrument of value to member municipalities, and obviously it provides a medium for the kind of joint presentation that needs the strength of united action.

Victoria may have reached the stage where it does not derive as much benefit from the union as the smaller municipalities, but Victoria is not yet so big, so powerful or so influential that it can go it alone. There is always need for association where matters of common concern are dealt with. A municipality must of course be prepared to give as well as receive, and if it participates only to gain a selfish benefit then its membership in the UBCM is not being wisely used.

It is unfortunate that the mayor's adverse comment should be current property just as arrangements are being made for the annual convention of the organization, to be held later this year in this city. There is a certain infelicity about condemning a body to which one is getting ready to play host. The convention is not solely Victoria's business, but the normal round of courtesy implies that its City Council should on this occasion be specially attentive to UBCM needs. That these will be amply attended to can be assumed, however. Happily most Victoria aldermen do not agree with the implication that all UBCM members are out of step but the Victoria Jock. Nor indeed are they.

Interpreting the News

The Labor Party's Mission

BY J. M. ROBERTS, JR.
Associated Press News Analyst

IF the Democratic National Committee were to send Harry Truman and Adlai Stevenson abroad on a definite diplomatic mission it would not only create the champion of all stinks but would very probably be ruled against the law.

That's just what the minority British Labor Party is doing, however, and public opinion in Britain is such that it will probably not only get away with it, but be widely praised.

In this mission, Clement R. Attlee, former prime minister and head of the party, is joining hands with Aneurin Bevan, his bitter enemy and leader of the party's extreme left wing.

They and six other Laborites will go to Peiping, at the invitation of the Communist regime there, in an effort to promote full diplomatic relations between Britain and China.

* * *

Britain, though recognizing the Peiping government, has only a second-level diplomatic mission there which has been studiously ignored by the Reds, who have sent no mission to London.

The Laborites are taking advantage of the strong feeling in England that every possible opportunity of dealing with the Communist sphere should be explored. This is in addition to their longstanding desire to resume commercial relations with China specifically.

The Liberal News Chronicle, first London paper to comment on the Laborite decision, anticipated that the action would arouse criticism in the United States.

* * *

The British have been loudest of all the foreign nations in criticism of the government in Washington for not quashing Senator McCarthy and closing the split in Republican Party ranks. They have made much of McCarthy's attempt to inject his influence into the conduct of America's international relations.

The question is now whether the British will see anything similar in an attempt by a group which dissents from the policy of their own government to enter directly into the conduct of British international relations.

Thinking Aloud

". . . of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings"

By TOM TAYLOR

JUST for amusement I've been looking at the Journal for Calendar Reform. Changing the months around isn't something that sets me afire, but I like to note what's going on.

This journal now, it's been going a long time. Volume XXIV, I see, which goes to show how hard people are to move. Away back in 1937 the League of Nations took up the idea of dickering with the calendar, and now, I read, its successor is bent on doing ditto.

No doubt a relaxation from trying to end wars.

One's as difficult to attain as the other, apparently. Which isn't a bit strange. It took the Gregorian timetract ages to become popular. In fact, since people have always hated tinkering with days and weeks this might indicate they're better left alone, but no true-blue, up-to-the-minute reformer likes the status quo.

Anyway the status quo's often in bad odor—like sticking in the mud.

* * *

Don't think by that I'm proselytising for the world calendar blokes. Dear me, no. I'm quite content with the present setup. It doesn't worry me one bit that I once learned a rhyme . . . "Thirty days hath September, April, June and . . ." in order to know what day it was or to distinguish between next week in February and a week in December.

Come to think of it, in all my born days I've never heard anyone complain about the Gregorian calendar. Everyone I know can follow it with his eyes shut.

That's what makes it hard to absorb its defamation.

One thing really does surprise me. For instance, the selling point that the proposed world calendar will last a lifetime. The one I'm using has lasted a lifetime as it is, but let's let that go. The idea is that this every-week-the-same chart won't need to be replaced.

Now this runs counter to all modern progress. No one ever makes anything that will last nowadays. Imagine the same car forever, or the same baby's rattle. Why, industry would collapse right away.

And this from reformers who scorn the Gregorian chart as old-fashioned!

* * *

Of course there's a lot to this world calendar. One authority says it will help nations to get along peacefully together; just how isn't too clear, however. Another says the present calendar hasn't a leg to stand on. One might be facetious and say it doesn't need legs, mostly it's hung on a wall, but that would be begging the question. Not to beg it, though, one must in rebuttal claim that it's stood sturdily on its legs very well indeed.

As soon, to me, change the streets of Victoria. They're a nuisance to strangers, I'll admit. I daresay it's convenient to have streets laid out north, south, east and west and split it into numbered blocks, but land's sake where in this is the variety, the richness, the texture of communal life?

Isn't there joy in a winding lane?

An eternal sameness. That's what the new world calendar would impose on us, and it's rather akin for comfort to the sort of sameness some other reformers would imprison us in.

Perhaps, though, not being in love with arithmetic, I'm subconsciously playing safe. Another authority is quoted as saying: "The reformed calendar is a rational, universally applicable and mathematically respectable idea."

No one's asking me of course but I think on this subject I prefer to be dubbed irrational and not respectable.

British Diplomacy at Geneva

By ELIZABETH BARKER, from London

THE Geneva conference has not rigidly followed the pattern of all recent conferences between the West and Soviet Russia. This is perhaps the most striking impression which one takes away after watching the opening weeks of the Geneva talks. On all the four-power meetings on Germany and other European problems, Soviet obstruction has imposed an atmosphere of sterile formalism and unreality. At Geneva there has somehow been a greater sense of realism; and the two opposing sides seem to have come somewhat nearer to grappling with the practical issues involved.

Questions such as Communist China's claim to identical status with the four inviting powers at Geneva were not allowed to hold up either the Korean talks or the Indo-China talks. Yet there still remained a vital task. The conference had to be beyond the stage of set speeches delivered—on the Communist side—largely for purposes of propaganda directed towards Asian opinion. It had to be steering towards genuine negotiations conducted in less unproductive forms. It was Mr. Eden who played a leading part in guiding the conference in this direction.

His method has been to define these points at which there was a measure of agreement between the two sides, and to try to extend areas of agreement by seeking greater clarity wherever there has been vagueness or obscurity, or wherever either side has hinted at the possibility of concession.

* * *

In the case of Korea, at the moment when the formal sessions seemed to have reached a dead point, Mr. Eden intervened with this aim. Making his first formal speech on the Korean question, Mr. Eden pointed out that although the Communist proposals were unacceptable, there was, nevertheless, agreement on many points: for instance, that a unified Korea should be free to carry on its own affairs without foreign interference, but protected by appropriate guarantees from other countries.

He then set out five basic principles for an agreed solution, including elections genuinely reflecting the will of the whole of the Korean people, taking into account the distribution of population between North and South, and held under international supervision. On this last extremely controversial issue, Mr. Eden pointed towards a possible compromise: that the supervision might be conducted by the United Nations countries which had not taken part in the Korean war.

* * *

Mr. Eden has therefore opened up the path for concrete negotiation on Korea which may lead to progress on this side of the Geneva conference. On the Indo-China side, the British foreign secretary followed the same method of defining areas of agreement and seeking to extend them.

He pointed out that there seemed to be agreement between France and Communist Vietminh; that in Vietnam, troops on both sides should be withdrawn to certain defined areas; and he went on to ask how these areas were to be defined, what was to be done about disarming of irregular troops, and what form of international supervision could be agreed.

Here again—as in the case of Korea—Mr. Eden pointed towards a possible compromise: that supervision might be the responsibility of the United Nations countries not represented at Geneva. At the same time, Mr. Eden did not shirk vital points of agreement; but he sought to list them in a form which would make a possible concrete discussion.

* * *

On Indo-China, the Geneva conference has now entered the stage of private talks, if not yet of real negotiation. The same advance may also be made as regards Korea. It is too early to guess what the final outcome will be. But it is clear that there will at least have been a genuine and strenuous effort, on the United Nations side, to achieve a negotiated settlement. It is mainly due to British diplomacy that it has proved possible to undertake this effort.

Dandelion Delicacy

(From The Ottawa Journal)

IT is all right to talk enthusiastically about such things as Swiss chard, beet greens, or even lettuce that has been frightened into abject submission by pouring hot bacon fat over the green leaves. The countryman tries to be reasonably tolerant of the strange culinary tangents of his peers; but he feels strongly that if all men ate heartily of dandelion greens, correctly boiled with a chunk of lean salt pork, the frustrating agues and humors of spring fever would be more efficiently kept under control.

A dandelion is a weed of commendable valor, unflagging persistence and great vigor. The seed was introduced from Europe in dirt used in ships' ballast; the first mention of it apparently was in the year 1672. Technically it is a stemless plant with a flower stem that may grow over a foot in height. Home owners who stage an annual battle with their lawns until about July do not need to be told it is a sturdy perennial.

We are informed that some citizens make a distinctive and moderately potent drink by a certain process involving the leaves.

However, we are here concerned with dandelion greens served with a dinner of boiled potatoes, fried ham, home-made biscuits and grape jelly, and two pieces of room-temperature rhubarb pie. The potatoes, of course, are boiled in the liquid in which the greens are cooked. That water, delectably flavored with salt pork plus the tangy bite of the green leaves, is the perfect medium for a skinned, medium-sized spud.

Some there are who spend hours digging up the plants; much better cut the leaves and add a zestful dish to the diet.

The Packsack

OF GREGORY CLARK

A SNOB, according to the dictionary, is one who admires, imitates or cultivates those with social rank or wealth, and is condescending or overbearing to others. A second definition is: "one who affects social importance and exclusiveness."

It looks as if we were all snobs, one way or the other. And it may not be so bad a fate, after all. Most of us aspire to be better than we are; or if we don't, we are worse than snobs. And to be better than we are, we generally have to have some mark to shoot at, some model to aspire to.

By better, we all mean different things. There is a tremendous snobbery amongst crooks, for example. It is really pitiful, or a little comic, to learn how little crooks aspire to be big crooks; and how big crooks affect a social importance and exclusiveness, in their own terms of course, that puts to shame the snobbery of the clumsy types who come into money and try to affect the airs of long familiarity with wealth.

By better, others of us mean to be better morally, spiritually; and amongst the many denominations of religion will be found a pretty fair number of people whose snobbery takes the form of the belief that their religion is much superior to everybody else's. When some of these sects come rapping at our doors to rescue us from our ignorance or error, it is wonderful to perceive the expression of superiority in their eyes and faces. If you accuse them of pride in their superiority, they are shocked, and attempt to prove to you how humble they really are. But one of the forms of snobbery is humility. A humble person may take tremendous satisfaction in his superiority to you in humility.

There is racial snobbery, and little does one race realize in what contempt or derision other races hold it. Discuss racial discrimination long enough with the different protestors, and you are a little shaken to discover that it is not on grounds of equality but of superiority that they protest.

Wiggle and twist as we may, it is pretty hard to escape the charge of snobbery.

The sudden illness of an incumbent necessitated a telegram to the bishop. In the emergency, the bishop came and took the service himself. Afterwards, two very overawed rural churchwardens felt that they must express their thanks to the bishop. Letters to the Editor

For Veterans

Mr. St. Laurent has once more with his cabinet refused to discuss the Legion's request that the basic rates and allowable earnings for the war veterans' allowance recipients be increased. This will certainly not mean that the matter is closed. The Legion does not ask for anything that it does not feel is justified and in this case there is no question that they feel that they are asking for something which is long overdue.

A further request will be presented by the Dominion Command of the Legion and other veterans' organizations that this matter be taken up and discussed at the present session.

It could be that in the long run the prime minister's flat refusal may give the required incentive to the Legion's membership drive now under way. In British Columbia alone there are some 164,000 veterans, of whom only 35,000 have so far joined the Legion.

Various reasons have been offered why more have not joined but probably the real reason is that after the Second War so much legislation was already on the books for the benefit of the new veteran that many failed to realize that all this legislation had been won by the constant struggles of the older war veterans.

The younger veteran who has now begun to be settled down with housing schemes, educational help and VLA benefits—all the result of the efforts of the war veterans, who after the first war had none of these things—will no doubt take a hand in the Legion's continuous fight for justice to the old burned-out veteran.

The young veteran must realize that when it comes to asking for something from the government, the politician is apt to take a look at the number of voters who will be affected by the granting of particular requests. When the Legion asked for legislation for the benefit of younger veterans the affected voting strength was considerable. Granting requests for justice for war veterans' allowance recipients would affect a comparatively small number of voters, so it appears simple to say no.

If the Legion could go with its request and point out that it represented 134,000 British Columbia veterans instead of only 35,000 and other provinces across Canada in like proportion, then any government would take a much more serious view, as with all the war veterans and family votes the total would be considerable.

Unless the number of members increases, the younger veteran may easily find that some of the present legislation may be whittled away from lack of voting strength.

The Old Veterans will certainly continue to fight for a better deal for the WVA recipients. It is up to the younger veteran to join their older comrades and add weight to the strength. After all it is one way to say "Thank you" to the older veteran for the existing legislation which has meant so much to the younger veteran.

The Anthem

As the appropriate place for the playing of the National Anthem in local movie theatres is now under discussion in your paper, may I advise you where it is played in New Zealand.

Before the picture starts, the portrait of the Queen is thrown on the screen. Everyone stands and the National Anthem is played.

I have always felt that this is a very fitting place and is, as your editorial states it should be, "a moving and special tribute."

Correction

In a letter published in the "Colonist" on Sunday, May 23, on Britain's right to Gibraltar, six words were omitted from the closing sentence, which should have read:

". . . it (meaning the Treaty firm, legal and ethical basis of Versailles, 1783) put England's claim to the Rock on a firm, legal and ethical basis . . ."

W. A. McAdam

The recent announcement by Premier Bennett that British Columbia's agent-general in London is to retire at the end of this year, on reaching the civil service age limit, will evoke feelings of acute regret among those who like myself have been for many years observers of the wholly admirable work he has done for our province.

Mr. W. A. McAdam has a wonderful flair for advertising British Columbia exactly in the manner that appeals to the British public, to whom "ballyhoo" is not only regarded as bad taste but as actually self-defeating.

He made contacts with business men of the highest standing. He told them the facts they desired to know. He arranged tours of B.C. for them so they could see for themselves the province's magnificent resources. He provided flagpoles for Kew Gardens and other famous places in London—flagpoles that brought home to millions of Londoners knowledge of the forest wealth of the Pacific Coast. Apart from his famous B.C. war canteen which everyone knows about, he cleverly made use of the English love of pageantry — the Captain Vancouver Memorial Day celebrations, the visit of the Lord Mayor of London to the Pacific Coast, the creation of the Church of St. Mary Woolnoth, in the city of London, as British Columbia's own church. These are only a few of the many means he used to keep the province constantly in the eye of the British newspaper reader.

At the same time, his weekly News-Letter kept thousands of business men and others in London in close touch with provincial development and provincial affairs.

Now it is reported that Premier Bennett is looking for a successor to Mr. McAdam. Where will he get one with half Mr. McAdam's qualifications or quarter his record of achievement? I write to suggest to the Cabinet that they ought seriously to consider continuing Mr. McAdam in office for another three or four years. He is young and vigorous yet; he can do excellent work still. . .

Octopus Tricks

The recent regrettable drowning off the Dallas beach gave rise to the idea that the victim had been seized by an octopus. An eminent authority stated that to be very unlikely, as the octopus does not attack man.

Some time since a naturalist in England wrote me asking for information as to the octopus on this coast. I supplied him with all that I knew, and he replied saying that if a person was seized by an octopus he should if possible strike it a hard blow on the top of the head, which would cause it to relax its grip. As we do not usually carry knives with which to sever the tentacles, this would appear to be the only course to take.

Although this creature may not be generally dangerous, there is individualism in all animals. I well remember a statement by the late Theodore Roosevelt, "In nine cases out of ten a wild beast will run from a man, but you never know the time that he will not."

Report Published

On May 20 the Lower Vancouver Island Conservative Associations held a most successful meeting in Esquimalt. There were approximately 150 enthusiastic members present, which is a larger attendance than was drawn to a recent Liberal meeting at which their leader and two members were speaking.

At the Conservative meeting, the provincial leader, Deane Finlayson, gave a speech that would have been inspiring, not only to Conservative supporters but to anyone who heard him. He told of the gratifying gains in membership being made throughout B.C., and the increasing number of young people's groups being formed.

A move for a vote of confidence in the leader brought a standing ovation that rivalled anything seen in this city.

The activities of political parties are brought to the general public through the press, but it seems quite apparent that the Conservatives are not getting fair press coverage. As there are a good number of Conservatives who read the Colonist, I am sending this letter in hopes that they will see it, and be informed of our successes.

Saanich Shift To Be Studied

The provincial government would be willing to study a proposal by Saanich to form its own school district, Education Minister Ray Williston said yesterday.

Saanich council is planning to see Mr. Williston to obtain clarification of how the municipality would go about forming a district.

Saanich at present forms part of the Greater Victoria School District 61 and part of District 63 with headquarters at Sidney.

Mr. Williston said the council had not yet approached him, but he could "see that they have a rather difficult problem" under the present setup.

He said any change would have to be made by the cabinet. The government would undertake to survey the situation if it was requested, he said.

Formation of a separate district would present any number of complex problems, mostly involving division of assessments.

The move toward a separate school district began recently when Saanich councillors expressed dissatisfaction over assessment reductions in Central Saanich. Part of Saanich, all of Central Saanich and Sidney are within District 63.

The Central Saanich assessment reduction, Saanich claimed, threw a heavier taxation load on municipal taxpayers. Most observers feel that Central Saanich made the reduction after it failed to obtain the legal right to assess a Brentwood power station's machinery.

TO BE EQUALIZED

Saanich's complaint about heavier taxes being thrown on the municipality by the Central Saanich reduction will be wiped out, however, when the government's equalization-of-assessment ruling goes into effect.

The assessment equalization, now being studied by a government commission, was designed to prevent the very situation Saanich and other municipalities are complaining about.

Parents Instructed On Child Problems

The inability to make decisions and face up to small every-day problems can be a direct throwback to over-dependency of a child on its parents.

W. H. Gaddes, professor of psychology at Victoria College, lectured and showed a film on this subject at the college Thursday night to 160 parents in the first of a series of lectures on child behavior.

NO RESPONSIBILITY

"A child is born with no responsibility and completely dependent on its parents, but as it grows older, dependency and responsibility should work inversely, if the parents are careful in their training," he said.

The six-year-old will watch a three-year-old do something wrong, know it is wrong but not be able to grasp just what should be done about it, he told his audience.

"Punishing or reprimanding the six-year-old for letting the smaller child do the wrong thing only leaves the six-year-old in a state of anxiety.

"This should be carefully avoided if the child is to learn to accept responsibility later," he said.

The inability or lack of desire to face reality can lead to a problem of serious proportions, gradually developing the person into a neurotic, he said.

"It is not uncommon to see people who can't even make up their minds what tie to wear, or if they should use milk and sugar in tea or coffee. They become completely dependent on others."

Professor Gaddes then showed a film, Over-dependency, in which the subject, a young married man, leaned on his wife and friends for all his decisions, including his choice of a tie.

Dozens of questions asking how this can be avoided in child training were put to the lecturer after the film.

ONLY SOLUTION

Teaching the child to accept little responsibilities without throwing on too much responsibility at once is the only solution, Professor Gaddes said.

It takes careful training on the part of the parent, he said.

The second in the series of child behavior lectures will be held in the Victoria College auditorium at 8 p.m. next Thursday when the lecture and film will be "The Feeling of Hostility."

Registration for the course may be made to the registrar at Victoria College by mail.

City Minister Nominated As Moderator

Rev. J. Lewis McLean, of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Victoria, has been nominated for the position of moderator of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, it was learned here last night.

The election will take place at the 80th general assembly of the church, which opens Wednesday.

Some 900 delegates representing the 180,000 members will attend the congress preceding the general assembly.

Other nominees for moderator besides Dr. McLean are Rev. F. G. Stewart of Kitchener, Ont., Rev. W. L. McLellan of New Glasgow, N.S., and Rev. John R. Waldie of London, Ont.

Sergeant Punished For Roughness

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sgt. Jack Thompson of the Vancouver city police was reprimanded by Chief Constable Walter Mulligan Thursday and lost his preferential police court post for roughing a news photographer.

He was not demoted, but loss of the court job means he will be shifted from the day shift [illegible] to patrol duties which will mean riding police cars on different shifts.

The reprimand and change in duties came after Chuck Jones, arthritic photographer for the Vancouver Province, complained the sergeant hauled him down a flight of stairs after he had been given permission to take pictures inside the police station.

Chief Mulligan said he had given Jones permission to take pictures, but had later changed his mind because he didn't think Mary Mellish, 18-year-old murder suspect, would like her picture taken.

Jones said he had not been informed of the chief's new decision.

Sergeant Thompson was given a reprimand for "unnecessary roughness" and a lecture on police procedure.

Nanaimo Chamber Studies Chest Plan

NANAIMO—Are multiple appeals by cahritable organizations a problem in Nanaimo? That is the question which must be decided in assessing the need of a community chest.

The advice was given to the Chamber of Commerce by Ralph B. Matthews, chairman of Greater Victoria Community Chest, who spoke along with Courtenay Haddock, chairman of the Victoria campaign.

Mr. Haddock told the meeting if the Local Council of Women is behind the Community Chest plan, "you are practically home free."

No direct action resulted from a fact-finding meeting but chamber president Douglas Greer said the project was an important one and the chamber felt it was its duty to bring the matter before the public. Perhaps it will have provided a spark for formation of a group to decide the need, he said.

QUESTION RAISED

Question of whether or not many cities the size of Nanaimo employ or need the chest idea was raised by R. H. Mawhinney. Mr. Matthews said a city's size does not matter, but only if multiple appeals were becoming a problem.

He said better results are obtained through a chest because when individual appeals become too numerous they are inclined to become competitive.

Speakers emphasized the need for unqualified support by civic leaders and community groups.

Mechanics of organization were outlined and advice given on preparation of the campaign.

Mr. Matthews said Victoria is proud of its chest. Cost of campaign operation was only 3.4 per cent of every dollar received; annual administration cost is 3.6 per cent. Agencies operating separate appeals sometimes show campaign costs as high as 14 per cent, he said.

SIXTEEN AGENCIES

Responding to a question, Mr. Matthews pointed out Victoria has 16 member agencies, but there is growing alarm in Victoria concerning the number of other appeals outside the Community Chest. However, people were beginning to realize the value of a united appeal and the chest is receiving more support.

If a chest is started in Nanaimo there should be no difficulty of getting all organizations behind it, Mr. Matthews said.

Power Plant Too Costly

PORT ALBERNI—Cost of establishing a diesel electric station here to provide domestic current in event of a major breakdown in power would be more than [illegible] letter from the B.C. Power Commission read at council meeting Wednesday evening.

In reply to council's request for an auxiliary plant in the district, the letter said that in view of the fact that there had been very few failures in service, expense of the installation was not considered warranted.

The project would also involve keeping a crew of skilled personnel available.

The letter was ordered filed, and Ald. H. C. Hamilton commented that it was a good thing to have it in the records that council had asked for the auxiliary plant.

LADYSMITH — City council has granted the RCAF at Comox permission to drop leaflets over Ladysmith from a Lancaster aircraft on June 5, publicizing Air Force Week and open house on Air Force Day, June 12.

PORT ALBERNI—A fine of $5 to $10 will be imposed in cases of chimney fires where the chimney has not been cleaned within the past year.

At a Port Alberni council meeting, Mayor Loran Jordan had expressed concern over the expense caused through the fire department attending numerous chimney fires. City clerk H. D. Thain had been asked to check the city's by-laws to discover if any action could be taken against owners or occupants.

Mr. Thain told council Wednesday night that the situation is covered, permitting an imposition of fines in cases where receipts can not be shown to prove that chimneys had been cleaned.

The fire chief will be asked to enforce the by-law.

It was disclosed that according to the by-law a householder may clean his own chimney, informing the fire chief of the fact at the time, in which case he will not be liable to prosecution in the event of a fire.

LADYSMITH — Five girls chosen by vote of their classmates will compete for the honor of reigning as Queen of Ladysmith's Golden Jubilee celebrations June 30 and July 1.

The girls are Moira Ritchie of North Oyster, Karen Kiviniemi of The Diamond, Gail Kotilla of Saltair and Lorna De Clark of St. Mary's Convent—all 11 years old and in Grade 5—and Betty Smith, 12, in Grade 6 at Ladysmith Elementary.

NANAIMO—Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. today for Alexander Aigner, 51, of Northfield.

He had been a well-known member of the United Mine Workers of America.

He is survived by his widow, one daughter and three stepsons; a sister, Mrs. M. Lister, Ladysmith; three brothers, Michael, Cumberland, Felix, South Wellington, and Ernest, Nanaimo.

DUNCAN — A dog gymkhana at Elan Centre, Cherry Point, at 2 p.m., will feature a variety of events, including an egg and spoon race, a recall race, and a special thread-line race which will see the dogs led through lines of thread following plates of meat.

The dog obedience training class version of musical chairs will also be a feature of the free show by trained dogs of Duncan and Victoria.

Transport Planning Urged by Island MP

OTTAWA (CP) — Thomas Barnett (CCF, Comox-Alberni) said Thursday night government transport bodies should do less regulating and more planning and co-ordinating of transportation facilities.

He said in the Commons that steamship services are being abandoned arbitrarily on the West Coast of Vancouver Island without other transportation facilities being provided.

As an example of the lack of planning and collaboration in transportation, he said in February, 1953, the steamship service to Seaford, in his own Vancouver Island constituency, was discontinued temporarily because the wharf was in need of repairs.

The works department provided repairs which were completed last December. Now Tidewater Shipping Company, which had operated the steamship service, had decided not to continue the service.

Stuck on Reef off Sidney

Derrick To Attempt To Refloat Trawler

A floating derrick early today will attempt to lift the 42-foot fishing trawler, Seven Seas, from the reef off Sidney where she ran aground early yesterday in heavy weather.

The derrick-scow Recoveror, towed by the tug Wilmay Strait, was due on the scene last night and an effort is to be made to refloat the vessel at high water early today.

The two Vancouver fishermen aboard the Seven Seas, Capt. Alec Vogrig and Harold Hodgkinson, were plucked from the stranded ship by another fishing vessel early yesterday after they radioed a distress signal.

The vessel was on its way to fishing areas on the West Coast of Vancouver Island when she ground into the rocks about 10 miles off Sidney.

CALL PICKED UP

A radio call for aid was picked up by the RCAF air-sea rescue co-ordination centre. Nearby vessels were ordered to go to the assistance of the fishermen.

The call was answered by the fishboat Co-operator No. 2, skippered by Capt. F. E. Lewis, of nearby Coal Island.

Captain Lewis took the pair to his island home and the seamen were later put aboard the Salvage Queen, which arrived from Victoria yesterday morning.

Vogrig and Hodgkinson were operating the boat on a share basis with the owner, John Safarik.

The Salvage Queen reports only slight damage to the Seven Seas. She is valued at $17,000 by her owner.

RISKY RESCUE

Captain Lewis and one of his employees, R. B. Dickson, also of Coal Island, took nearly an hour to rescue the two men after reaching the stranded Seven Seas.

Heavy seas and winds threatened to ground the Co-operator, and the rescuers were unable to get near the stricken boat.

A dinghy was finally put out from Co-operator and the two men, badly shaken, were brought off the reef.

Second Catastrophe for Owner

Huge Logs Crash Against Store

Misfortune dogs George Turner.

Five years ago his store was flooded out at Island View Beach and yesterday two huge Douglas fir logs rolled right into his shop on "17-mile hill" near Sooke.

A logging truck driven by Gerry Robeson of Sooke was coming down the 17-mile hill when the trailer jackknifed, overturning the truck and hurling the logs into Mr. Turner's store.

Amazingly, no one was injured. The driver escaped with minor bruises and a gasoline pump which took the main impact of the logs is credited with saving Mr. Turner and a salesman who was in the store at the time.

The pump was just tangled metal when it ended up against the store with two of the logs. The logs smashed hard against the store, shattering windows, crushing in the woodwork and pushing joists a foot back.

Floors in the building were buckled, merchandise was scattered and dishes were broken, but the logs hit the full breadth of the building and failed to crash through.

Mrs. Patience Norman, who was upstairs listening to the radio, thought it was an earthquake. Miss Ida Pearson, who was in the kitchen, was alarmed and angry because a priceless collection of chinaware she had brought from Manitoba was smashed to pieces.

Mr. Turner saw the logs coming. He heard a bump and then saw the logs wildly rolling at the store.

"It was a lucky thing I wasn't at the pumps," he said. "I've just spent $1,600 fixing up the store and adding on a cafe, and then this happened."

His loss at Island View beach was $5,000. There has been no estimate yet on yesterday's damage. But it will be high.

One log was five feet in diameter and 16 feet long, and the other was 3½ feet in diameter and 20 feet long. Another log smashed into a row of mail boxes.

Commando Bites Dust

DUNCAN — A hard-headed Cowichan Commando pitched 15 feet down a stairwell to escape being shot in the face with a blank-loaded rifle during week end manoeuvres here.

George Whittaker, a North Cowichan municipal councillor, was with the Commandos ("Her Majesty's Loyal Communist Army") trying to enliven a three-day field exercise by the Duncan anti-aircraft battery and cadets.

His face scratched and his arm in a sling, Commando Whittaker told a council meeting how he had hidden himself in the upper story of an old bunkhouse to fling flour bombs at the gunners.

As he turned to make his getaway he found himself looking down the barrel of a rifle in the hands of a flour-

Lunging away from the muzzle blast, Commando Whittaker grabbed at a stair railing which collapsed.

He plunged down the stairwell and landed on the top of his head. He broke his wrist.

Lighting Problem For Ladysmith

LADYSMITH—City of Ladysmith street light contract with the B.C. Power Commission expires in November, 1954. C. W. Nash, district manager of the power commission at Nanaimo, will be invited to attend the next council meeting, June 8, with maps and figures.

On the basis of $1.50 per capita, with population within the city at 2,000, cost to the municipality will be $3,000; but this will be offset by a 3 per cent pole rent which will reduce the city's cost for lights by $1,500, city clerk R. S. Wood stated in review.

There are 141 lights covering the present contract; but 17 of these are outside the city limits, mostly in the Bayview District.

SERVICE MAY BE CUT

Unless some agreement is reached for continuation of street lights, service may be cut off in outside areas, when the present contract expires.

Mayor Leonard Ryan suggested Bayview Ratepayers' Association might take the matter up but opinion was voiced in council that the association no longer functions.

An added charge on the water rates was suggested.

City Clerk Wood was appointed returning officer for the sale of lands by-law to be presented to the public on Thursday, June 17, along with the school building referendum.

The polling booth will be at St. John's Hall, High Street.

A delegation from the school board will attend the June 9 council meeting.

Duncan Seeks Flood Control Aid

DUNCAN—The flood period water table of Duncan and district is expected to be lowered at least four feet by a system proposed by Hugh Brockington, consulting engineer, and representatives of the Somenos drainage district, the municipality of North Cowichan and the city of Duncan will ask the provincial government to obtain as much assistance as possible in carrying out the work proposed.

Somenos drainage district will lead in making approaches to the government for a meeting.

Flooding is caused by draining most of the area north of the city first of all into Somenos Lake basin, and then reversing the direction of flow so that the heavy run-off goes south through the Cowichan River.

Mr. Brockington is confident that the entire northwest section can be effectively drained through putting in a main interceptor ditch to divert the heavy flow from Holmes Creek and Averill Creek directly to the Cowichan River.

Speedy Soap-Boxers Concern Council

PORT ALBERNI—Accident potential in soap box racing will be discussed at next week's council meeting.

Wednesday night, a letter from Gyro Club secretary Rey Labrasseur asking for use of Third Avenue from Athol Street to Napier for the July 1 race touched off a barrage of questions in connection with the city's responsibility in case of accident.

Permission was granted for use of the route as laid out in the letter, and Gyros will be asked to attend next week's meeting to discuss the safety angle.

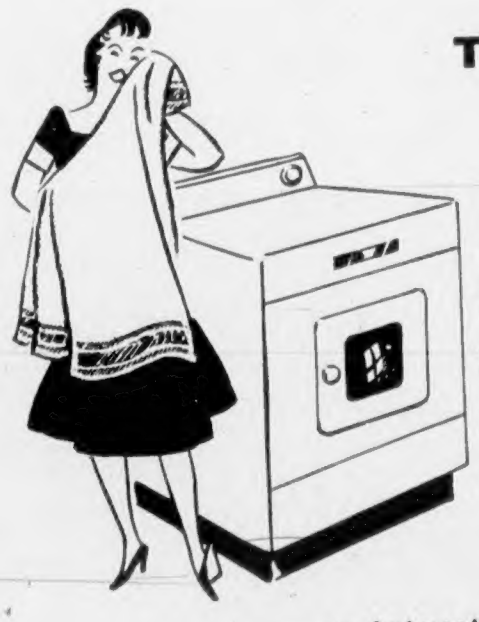

Mayor Loran Jordon reported that he had given the city's soap-box car to a youngster for entry in the race, and has since been wondering about where liability would fall if it were involved in an accident.

He gave it as his opinion that speeds of more than 40 miles an hour attained by the soap-box cars on Third Avenue were dangerous and noted that council is asking strict enforcement of the 30-mile-an-hour limit for traffic.

The city clerk was instructed to get information on insurance.

Fleming Bows Out Of U.K. Golf Play In Sixth Round

MUIRFIELD, Scotland—Bob Fleming of Victoria, fading badly in the late stages, bowed out of the British amateur golf tournament in the sixth round Thursday and with his defeat went Canada's hopes for a championship.

But the 24-year-old Gorge Vale golfer, 1953 British Columbia amateur champion, was the last of a 10-man Canadian contingent to fall before stiffening competition. After defeating Alex Mitchell of Scotland, 4 and 2, in a fifth round match, Fleming was eliminated by W. A. Slark of England, 2 and 1, in his bid to gain the quarter-finals.

TRAILED AT TURN

Fleming, the accurate-shooting match-play expert, twice led his English opponent on the front nine but trailed by one hole at the turn as Slark birdied the ninth in four to Fleming's five.

Fleming squared the match when his opponent went one over on the par-five 10th but lost the 13th and 15th when he couldn't match regulation figures. Fleming was unable to match par on the last five holes and was seven over par over the 17 holes.

Three other Canadians, who all survived fourth-round play Wednesday, were eliminaetd in the fifth round. Don Coe of Granby, Que., was caught on an off day and dropped a 7 and 6 decision to J. K. Tate of England.

Gordon B. Taylor of Montreal lost to Slark, 3 and 1, in the fifth round but Walt McElroy of Vancouver battled down to the wire before losing af the ber of the U.S. Navy who saved a year's pay to make the trip.

McElroy shot some spectacular golf before dropping his match to the youthful Davies. The 1951 Canadian amateur champion fired three birdies and went over par only once on a torrid back nine without gaining a hole on his U.S. opponent. He lost the match by straying into the rough and barely missing a five-foot putt on the extra hole.

Seven of the Canadians — Taylor, Doe, McElroy, Fleming, Nick Weslock, Doug Silverberg and Phil Farley — leave today for St. Andrews, where they will play in the Commonwealth matches June 1-4.

DID PRETTY WELL

Taylor, who will captain the team, said Thursday "We did pretty well." He added that the last four men in Canada's entry list played "good steady golf that just wasn't good enough."

One of the tournament's top favorites, Frank Stranahan of Toledo, O., joined the Canadians on the sidelines. Stranahan, barely extended in the early rounds, dropped his sixth-round match to Ernest Millward, 4 and 3. Millward is a former English champion.

Defending champion Joe Carr of Ireland remained in the running but had a bad scare before squeezing out a 20th-hole victory over Australia's Peter Toogood in the sixth round.

Bill Campbell, Walker Cup ace, and Major Dalton Henderson of San Francisco both reached the quarter-finals, the only Americans left in the running.

Campbell scored a 1-up victory over E. L. Dalton of South Africa in the sixth round title while Henderson moved past Alan Hall of Scotland, 3 and 2.

Limp Sidelines Native Dancer

NEW YORK (UP) — Native Dancer limped back from a workout at Belmont Park Thursday and immediately was declared out of the $50,000 added suburban handicap, but an X-ray failed to reveal the cause of his soreness.

Trainer Bill Winfrey, veterinarian William Wright and laboratory technicians examined the first plate of the injured right front foot but they found no sign of a fracture.

Native Dancer who drew an impost of 133 pounds for the memorial day classic—five more than handicapper John B. Campbell assigned Tom Fool a year ago—first showed signs of soreness Sunday.

Copley Bros. blanked Sooke, 7-0, in a Colwood and District Softball Association Junior League game last night.

Abolish Coyote Bounties, Game Convention Urged

NANAIMO, B.C. (CP) — Strong recommendations for the discontinuance of bounties on coyotes were advanced to provincial game convention delegates here Thursday.

G. A. West, B.C. game commission supervisor of predator control, said that the bounty system had proved ineffective and advocated instead the use of poison as the most effective means of controlling predators in any area.

NEGATIVE RESULTS

Mr. West said that from 1927 to 1951 bounties had been paid by the province for 113,717 coyotes with "negative results." Few hunters hunted them and at best all that had been accomplished was to destroy the surplus in small areas.

Since the introduction of 1080, the poison used, bounty payments had been reduced by one-half.

So effective had this means of control proved that complaints had come from some areas of a lack of coyotes.

Monopoly control in the hands of trained game men using poison had been proved the best means of wiping out the coyote population in any area, he said.

CHANCES FOR FRAUD

The bounty system, Mr. West felt, gave too many opportunities for fraud.

He quoted an experience a few years ago at Clinton where $5 had been offered for ears of wild horses. One hunter brought back so many pairs of horses ears that the commission became suspicious and investigating found that the hunter had a brother working in an abbatoir who had a collection of 1,200 pairs of ears, worth $6,000.

The province pays $18,000 a year for coyote bounties. There is no knowing how much of this is fraudulently obtained, he said.

Mr. Butler named Eric Collier, J. J. McEwan of Nelson and the representative from Fort St. John, a committee to study the bounty problem and to report later to the convention.

Montrealers Establish Swim Records

MONTREAL (CP)—Montrealers Gladys Priestley and Lloyd Kishino, two top Canadian hopefuls for the British Empire Games in Vancouver this summer, Wednesday night established Canadian swimming records at an open YMHA meet.

Miss Priestley swam to a 880-yard junior women's free-style time in 11:42.4 minutes, 41 seconds better than the previous mark set by Iren Barr of Hamilton.

Kishino, a 17-year-old McGill University student, swam the 100-yard senior men's butterfly in 1:02.8 minutes, beating the 1:03.7-minute record held by Peter Salmond of Victoria.

Visiting Anglers Happy

Certain to be enthusiastic boosters of Saanich Inlet salmon fishing in the future are Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Dillingham, pictured happily admiring part of a catch they reeled in during a recent outing. Guided by Claude Creed, the Honolulu residents boated five fish, including the 21-pound spring salmon and nine-pound steelhead shown above. Fish were taken on Strip Teaser lure used with approximately 350 feet of line.

Big Fish in Inlet For Derby Opening

Salmon anglers, heartened by reports of big fish in Saanich Inlet, will start Sunday morning in the first qualifying competition of the fourth annual Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association ladder derby.

The first qualifying competition will end the following Sunday night while each of the remaining nine will be of seven days duration, beginning on Monday morning and closing the following Sunday midnight. Final day for qualifying will be August 8 and the final fish-off is scheduled for August 22.

FIFTY RUNGS

Fifty rungs on the ladder will be open for competition each week, making a total of 500 anglers eligible to compete in the derby final for the top award of a 17-foot Bryant convertible cruiser powered with a 10 horse-power outboard and at least 10 other prizes.

In addition, six prizes totaling $50 will be awarded each week, bringing the total value of prizes to above $3,000, making it one of the richest derbies in the association's 20-year history.

In the case of a tie for the 50th rung, one or more prizes will be added and the ladder the following week will have a corresponding number of rungs deducted.

MEMBERSHIP NEEDED

To be eligible to enter the derby, an angler must have purchased a VSIAA membership card and a derby entry ticket, both are available at Victoria sporting goods stores and at registered boathouses on Saanich Inlet. Paid-up junior members may compete after obtaining a derby ticket.

A derby ticket must be surrendered with each fish presented for weighing. However, although an angler may qualify only once, he may win one prize in any weekly competition and may purchase as many entry tickets as he wishes.

Those weighing in fish are urged to retain their fish receipts after ascertaining they are properly filled out. Also, for those who are fortunate enough to bring in a salmon of 20 pounds or more, entrants are reminded that claim certificates for button-sized fish must be in the hands of the club secretary within ten days.

TACKLE RULES

Derby entrants must make their catches on rod and reel with the rod not less than six feet in length. No leaded lines or hand lines are permissible and one lure only may be used with each line. Fishermen may have assistance while playing a fish only in gaffing or netting their catch.

Salmon must be caught in Saanich Inlet and may be weighed in at any of the following boathouses: Anchorage, Creed's, Brentwood Marine Works, Gilbert's and Miller's Landing at Brentwood, Hall's at Goldstream, Holder's at Deep Cove, Dick Williams at Sandy Beach and Mill Bay Tourist Resort.

SELECTION BASIS

Prizes for the final fish-off will be awarded on a selection basis with fortunate fishermen having their choice of the prizes according to the weights of their catches. It is expected that one or more prizes will be added for competition among junior entrants in the final.

Complete prize list follows:

1. 17-foot Bryant convertible cruiser equipped with 10-hp outboard motor; 2. 14-foot runabout equipped with 2½-hp motor; 3. 21-inch television set with stand; 4. electric refrigerator; 5. cabinet model electric sewing machine; 6. 3½-hp outboard motor; 7. table-model radio phonograph; 8. complete set of chinaware; 9. set of binoculars; 10. car radio.

Seth Halton Re-elected As City Grid President

Seth Halton, publisher of The Daily Colonist, was elected president of the Greater Victoria Canadian Football League for the second straight year at the annual general meeting held last night.

Bert Buller was elected vice-president, Ralph Petterson was returned as secretary-manager, and Frank Ballston was named treasurer. Elected to the executive were: Barry Goult, Norm Lang, Dave Gibson, Gordon Williamson and Dick Pipes.

Last year's financial report and the president's report were read during the meeting and plans for this season were discussed. Two leagues—an intermediate and a junior circuit—will operate this season.

Vampires, Oak Bay and Navy are certain entries in the intermediate league, while Vampires, Navy, Oak Bay and Royal Roads are definite starters in the junior circuit

BY JIM TANG

A ringing single from the bat of Eddie Lake at 11.52 last night sent Ron Jackson across the plate from second base and gave Victoria Tyees a 4-3 victory over the Edmonton Eskimos after 14 innings of the season's best baseball.

The win moved the Tyees ahead of the Alberta club into second place in the WIL standings. The four-game series continues tonight with Bill Bottler due to pitch for the Tyees and Charlie LeBrun, one-time Victoria righthander, the probable Edmonton choice.

FOUR FOR FLINN

Lake's single gave Hal Flinn his fourth win of the season, and a deserving one it was too. The gangly righthander pitched the full 14 innings, gave up only six hits and struck out 12. But for two errors which cost him two unearned runs and the amazing inability of the Tyees to cash in on their scoring chances, he would have won it a lot earlier than he did.

Facing two of Edmonton's best in Jack Widner and John Conant, the Tyees had at least one runner on the bags in every inning but the fifth. But they had trouble bringing their runners around. They scored their first run on a base on balls, a two-base error on an attempted pick-off at first base, and a sacrifice fly. They tied it up in the eighth when four singles and a hit batsman scored two runs. But from there to the 14th, some tremendous clutch pitching by Conant kept them out until the percentages finally caught up with the veteran righthander.

STOPPED CAPS

Conant, who stopped Vancouver Capilanos, 3-2 Tuesday night, was rushed in with the score 3-2 for Edmonton, the bases loaded and only one out. He hit Victoria manager Don Pries to force in the tying run but struck out Milt Martin and Flinn to leave the bags loaded.

The Tyees loaded them again in the ninth on two singles and an intentional base on balls but Conant got Joe Joshua on a weak ground ball.

In the 10th, Conant got a called third strike past Steve Mesner with runners on second and first. In the 11th, Martin left the bases loaded when he skied out to right-field.

STRATEGY WORKS

In the 12th, with runners on first and third with one out, Edmonton manager Bob Sturgeon ordered Tom Perez purposely walked to load the bags for the fourth time in five innings. Sherdian forced a runner at the plate and Lake struck out as Conant again pitched himself out.

In the 13th, two walks put runners on first and second with one out but Flinn struck out and Dain Clay flied out. That made it 16 runners left on the bags in six successive innings. There were 24 for the game.

Conant, who had appeared to waver a bit in the seventh and eighth, came back strong to handle the hard-hitting Esks with ease. Only 21 batters faced him in the last six innings and only in the 14th, after two were out, did the Esks get two on the sacks at one time. Three of Edmonton's six hits came in the fourth inning, the other three were scattered over the last 11 innings.

JACKSON STARTS IT

Jackson, who came into the game in the 12th when Armando Sanchez ran for Mesner, made two difficult putouts at first base before he cracked a sharp single to left in his first trip to the plate to launch the winning rally. Perez sacrificed and Sheridan was walked to put the double-play setup on the bags. But Lake ripped a 1-1 pitch on a low line past third base and the speedy Jackson easily beat the throw.

Capilanos boosted their lead to two and a half games by getting past Calgary Stampeders, 7-5, at Vancouver as John Cordell came to the relief of Tom Loverich in the fifth to get credit for the win with shutout pitching. A two-run single by Nick Pesut in the eighth sent in the tie-breaking runs.

Yakima Bears stopped Lewiston Broncs twice, 1-0 and 8-2, behind the fine pitching of Ted Edmunds and John Carmichael. In other games, Salem Senators bested Tri-City Braves, 5-3, and Wenatchee Chiefs edged Spokane Indians, 9-8.

YIELDS FIVE HITS

George Kinch gave up only five hits, two of them extra-base blows by Len Shreenan, struck out 13 and walked only three in picking up the victory. Duncan used three pitchers in an effort to stop the rampaging Servicemen with starter Jack Bradly being charged with the setback.

The winners scored one run in the first inning and then pushed across five more in the fourth frame on only two hits. Two errors and three walks by Bradly helped things along.

Duncan tied the score in the third inning when Shreenan smashed a home run and he doubled home the final two runs in the seventh frame when Kinch gave up two of his three walks.

Doug Boettcher and Mel Padgett paced the winners at the plate with two singles apiece.

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) —Vancouver Pilseners moved into a tie for third place in the Intercity Lacrosse loop with a free-scoring 19-13 win over New Westminster Royals before some 600 fans here Thursday night.

The win for the Pils moved them into a tie for third spot with just two games off second spot, occupied by PNE Indians. The loss for the Royals left them in last place. Victoria leads the league.

NO MATCH

The Royals, playing their second game in as many nights, were no match for the rested and determined Pilsener squad. The Johnny Cavillan-coached Vancouver club was grim about moving out of last place in the league, and they came up with their highest scoring effort of the season in doing so.

The Pils were leading 3-2 at the end of the first quarter, 10-6 at the half, upped it to 16-9 at the three-way mark and hanged home three goals in the last frame to the Royals four.

BIGGEST NIGHT

Freddie Aspin, playing his sophomore season with the Pils, came up with his biggest scoring night when he clicked on four goals, and assisted on two others. Two others who hit the hat trick were Barry Pfaff and Harry Buchanan. Ed Hanson, Bobby Marsh, Jack Byford, and Jim Swanson, hit for two goals, with Jim Anderson getting one.

Don Sepka, playing with an injured leg and Max Skinner each garnered three goals in a losing cause for Royals. Other efforts went to Spunk Oddy, Murray Duncan, Don Cowie, Lyle Stewart, Lou Landess, and Cliff Sepka who had a brace.

Next game, tonight, National, Gyro vs. North Kiwanis, 6:30.

Oak Bay Kiwanis dropped deeper into the American League cellar at Little League Park last night when they went down to a 7-2 defeat at the hands of second-place Lions in Little League baseball action.

Sparked at the plate by first baseman Gary Wilcox and getting a steady pitching performance from Brent Ewing, the winners broke up a scoreless game with two runs in the top of the fourth inning and clinched it with a four-run outburst in the fifth frame, all of the scoring coming with two men out.

PERFECT NIGHT

Wilcox had a perfect night at the plate with two doubles and a single and two walks in five appearances. He batted in four runs and his single accounted for the first two runs.

Ewing gave up six hits, struck out nine and walked only one. He lost his bid for a shutout in the last inning when, with one out and a runner moving to second base, he threw the ball into centre field. A double by Dave Stewart drove in the second run of the inning.

Ron Spence started on the mound for the losers and, although in plenty of trouble, escaped unscathed until the fateful fourth. He was relieved by Bruce Graham in the fifth inning.

Bob Thornber picked up two hits, one a double, for Oak Bay, while Wilcox was the only Lion to get more than one hit.

New York Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers, the defending American and National League champions, respectively, both lost ground in the close pennant races yesterday as they suffered their second defeats in a row to clubs behind them in the standings.

The Yankees slipped to within one percentage point of fourth place and dropped two-and-a-half games behind the pace-setting Cleveland Indians when Washington Senators capitalized on loose defensive play for a 7-3 victory.

VERNON GETS AWARD

The Senators were spurred on by the appearance of President Eisenhower, who came out to present American League's silver bat trophy for the hitting championship of 1953 to Mickey Vernon, and a Red Cross benefit crowd of an estimated 30,500 fans including 8,700 school children.

The Nats batted around in the fifth inning when they scored five unearned runs to send southpaw Bob Kuzava down to his third straight setback. The usually steady Yankees made two errors by Gil McDougald and Jerry Coleman, a wild pitch by reliever Tom Gorman, and a passed ball by catcher Charley Silvera.

OUT OF SLUMP

Meanwhile, the Dodgers were having their troubles. Philadelphia Phillies came out of a hitting slump with a 14-hit attack that included home runs by Willie Jones, Earl Torgeson and Johnny Wyrostek plus four doubles in thumping the Dodgers 11-5.

Five pitchers saw action for Brooklyn with starter Don Newcombe taking his third loss in six decisions. Bob Miller, who relieved starter Curt Simmons in the fifth, pitched one-hit shutout ball the rest of the way for his second victory without defeat. Duke Snider got his 1,000th major league hit for Brooklyn and Don Hoak connected for his first big league homer.

Hank Sauer climbed into a tie with Stan Musial in the National League home run race, hitting his 14th of the season in leading Chicago Cubs to a 7-3 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Ned Garver picked up his fourth victory as he pitched Detroit Tigers to a seven-hit, 7-1 victory over Baltimore, which suffered its seventh straight defeat. There were no other games scheduled.

Larsen, Trabert To Meet For French Tennis Title

PARIS (AP)—Art Larsen, who won the U.S. tennis title in 1950, and Tony Trabert, the current titleholder, Thursday, set up an all-American final for the French international championships.

In Thursday's semi-finals Larsen of San Leandro, Calif., easily out-steadied big Enrique Morea of Argentina, 6-4, 6-3, 6-4. Trabert, of Cincinnati, eliminated a fellow American, Budge Patty, a native of Los Angeles who has been living in Paris for several years, 6-1, 7-5, 6-4.

Little Maureen Connolly of San Diego, Calif., blasted her way into the finals of the women's singles with an easy victory over Sylvana Lazzarino of Italy, 6-0, 6-1.

Miss Connolly, the defending champion, will meet Ginette Bucaille of France in the finals. Miss Bucaille Thursday eliminated Nelly Adamson of France, who had been seeded second, 6-2, 6-4.

RCAF Rugby XV Plays City Champions Saturday

NATO Astras, a rugby team from the RCAF station at Winnipeg and composed of players from the United Kingdom, will arrive here by air Saturday for an exhibition match with JBAA of the Victoria Rugby Union's Division 1 Saturday afternoon.

Paced by scrum captain Dick Carter, who was a member of the 1953 English International schoolboy XV, the Winnipeg team has won six straight matches in the Manitoba Rugby Union. Other standouts are APO Taffy Griffith, a Welsh trialist last year, and APO Eric Burrows, the oldest player on the team at 25.

TOUGH OPPOSITION

The visiting side can expect tough opposition in the exhibition match, which is scheduled to start at 2:30 at HMCS Naden grounds, Colville Road. The Oarsmen won the Division 1 league, city and island championships this season and just missed a title in the B.C. final. In addition, James Bay retained the A. H. Cox Trophy in its annual battle with the Vancouver Rowing Club.

Ran Hanson will start at fullback for the local side. Dave Cook will be standoff and John Skillings scrum half. Rounding out the backfield will be Wally Malcolm, Bob McKee, Bob Abbott and Ryan while the forwards will be Ed Bourke, Frank Gower, Harry Millard, Pete Fowles, Jack Shields, Harry Turner, Hugh Stroyan and Pete Barry. Mel Davison and Ralph Pettie are listed as spares.

With the government four going proceeds of the pari mutuel tax and with all net receipts slated to go to the games, the special meets are expected to provide $75,000.

Davey Appears Through as Professional Boxer

BY CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

CHICAGO (AP)—To all intents and purposes, Chuck Davey appears through as a professional boxer, ending one of television's first births of a national sports hero.

Davey was more than self-made, he was television-made. He advanced undefeated through a series of warm-ups, backed by the International Boxing Club, until he reached the top—a title fight with welterweight champion Kid Gavilan 15 months ago.

BUBBLE BURST

His bubble, incubated with painstaking care with an eye on a national following born from television, was then burst by Gavilan, who stopped him in the 10th.

Vince Martinez Wednesday night in the same Chicago Stadium ring showed less mercy than Gavilan. He kept Davey, the ex-Michigan State collegiate champion off balance with strong left jabs—something unheard of by a right-hander against a southpaw like Chuck.

And when he threw his rights, Davey was shaken down to his dancing feet. Davey went down four times—in the first round from a steaming right to the jaw; twice in the third from stiff left hooks, and again for an eight-count in the sixth from a series of rights.

DOCTOR STOPS BOUT

Martinez was credited with a technical knockout in the seventh round. An Illinois Athletic Commission doctor examined Davey after the sixth and ruled that the bout, scheduled for 10 rounds, should be stopped.

"It's a rough statement to make that Davey is through," said his manager, Hec Knowles, after the heartbroken boxer with a masters' degree in education had been led to his dressing room. "But I will recommend that he quit the ring now."

And as the curtain dropped on Davey, in the wings stood his wife, sobbing quietly: "Chuck has to quit now."

That'll be a million dollars please

Imperials shopping bill is more than $1 million a week ...thats what we spend in Canada just for everyday needs. It doesn't include crude oil, which alone runs to $4½ million a week! Nor does it include wages, salaries or taxes. What do we buy? Everything ... from soup (to feed geological parties) ... to nuts (to fit a few million bolts) derricks dynamite and diesels and even catalytic cracking units ("cat crackers" they're called) to make those better gasolines. We buy things from 6,000 Canadian firms from coast to coast. Shopping on this scale creates a lot of work for a lot of people... right across Canada.

Building Program Urgently Needed

$1,400,000 Project for Hospital Laid Before Municipal Groups

BY LAWRIE JOSLIN

A proposed $1,400,000 building expansion program for Royal Jubilee Hospital was laid before members of city and municipal councils at noon yesterday by the board of directors of the hospital.

[illegible]

Provincial government share of the total cost would amount to some $700,000. Federal government contributions would total $150,000. The board of directors of Royal Jubilee Hospital plans to finance a $225,000 share of the overall cost.

He recalled that the hospital's isolation ward had handled last year's polio epidemic for all Vancouver Island. He said the hospital is the only one on the Island with a psychiatric unit, an eye ward and certain training facilities for medical personnel.

There is always a danger, he said, that a hospital which is making an effort to meet special needs isn't meeting the [illegible]

France Sets New Indo-China Policy

PARIS (UP). Premier Joseph Laniel was reported Thursday to have completed preparation of emergency measures to salvage France's weakened military position in Indo-China.

The decisions for the new policy apparently followed a cabinet meeting and a later session of the national defense council Wednesday night.

French chief of staff Gen. Paul Ely, just back from a trip to Saigon and Hanoi, was understood to have urged the council to overhaul basic strategy in the Red River Delta not to abandon Hanoi and to rush all possible reinforcements to Indo-China.

Newspapers and sources close to the French national assembly said that Marshal Alphonse Pierre Juin may be approached to head a new super command in Indo-China. Juin recently was ousted from his military advisory posts in the French government after he publicly criticized [illegible]

Foreign Minister Georges Bidault was reported to have told the government that an honorable peace in Indo-China would be impossible without augmenting French forces there.

As a result he was sent back to Geneva with instructions to press for a cease fire as soon as possible while the government sought to strengthen its military position.

A [illegible] cabinet meeting was scheduled for early today to start examining the drastic [illegible] believed necessary.

MAIN CONCLUSIONS

Meanwhile these were said to be some of the government's conclusions:

- The expeditionary force to Indo-China [illegible]
- The Red River Delta [illegible]
- The [illegible]

Diplomatic sources said there exists a fair possibility of reconciling Western and Communist projects for an Indo-China cease fire. Bidault was reported to have told the cabinet that a cease fire will be in sight by next week or all hope will be gone of reaching one at Geneva.

Province Launched by Lieutenant-Governor

B.C.'s Beginning in 1871 Unique Event

BY JAMES K. NESBITT

It was a lieutenant governor, not a premier, who launched British Columbia as a province of Canada in 1871, John T. Saywell told Victoria section, B.C. Historical Association, in the provincial library Thursday.

Joseph W. Trutch was the only lieutenant governor in our history who dabbled in politics [illegible] was because there was no one else to set the brand new provincial government machinery in motion.

Mr. Saywell, 25-year-old son of a Cowichan Valley high school principal and father of two, is a Victoria College, UBC and Harvard graduate. In the autumn he will teach history at University of Toronto. He shortly will receive his doctorate from Harvard, his doctoral dissertation being a detailed study of the constitutional office of a Canadian lieutenant governor.

[illegible]

Mr. Saywell said [illegible] Amor de Cosmos [illegible] British Colonist [illegible] the two strongest political figures of the time [illegible] propaganda and influence [illegible] McCreight, Provincial Secretary A. R. Robertson and Chief Commissioner of Lands and Works Henry Holbrook had had little political experience, the cabinet was on the whole extremely weak and there was some truth in Robson's assertion that the [illegible] net ministers will be [illegible] for the next session to sweep away.

Soon came the first session of a B.C. provincial legislature. The government somehow struggled through it. Mr. Saywell said that some bills, obviously cabinet measures, were introduced as private members' bills and in this way a defeat of the government was avoided.

[illegible] showed, de Cosmos and Robson kept up their attacks on McCreight and Robertson.

However, Macdonald in Ottawa was pleased with the new setup. He wrote to Trutch: "The Province of British Columbia may now be considered as fairly launched, with a respectable crew on board, so that hereafter the duties of lieutenant governor will be rather of a [illegible] character."

[illegible]

And so came about a test of strength in the house and McCreight, after a year as premier, was defeated 11 to 10.

Trutch immediately called on de Cosmos to form a new government and de Cosmos became B.C.'s second premier.

Saywell summed up this history-making chapter in the story of British Columbia: [illegible] the final step, the convincing proof that the transition to responsible government had been made.

"The lieutenant governor willingly accepted the defeat of the government he had appointed and had felt very kindly toward. He accepted as premier a man for whom he [illegible] whom he had opposed bitterly for a good many years and who had so recently scurrilously attacked him in the press.

"This at a time when it would have been an easy matter to assist McCreight in a cabinet reconstruction, an easier matter actually than the formation of a new administration."

TV Talk

BY ROY PARRETT

The difference between the quality of the test patterns of KOMO-TV and KING-TV has been a minor mystery to local television servicemen for some time.

The KOMO-TV pattern is usually far superior to that of the channel 5 station. When programs begin however KING-TV is usually the best station.

Technician Laurie Hill came up with the simple explanation this week. The KING-TV pattern is transmitted at half power.

Proper comparisons between the two Seattle outlets can only be made when programs are being transmitted, he says.

Around and about: The first set of hearings among three Seattle radio stations, which want a TV license for channel 7 is now concluded. KXA is now considered to have an even chance, along with KIRO, for the channel.

Television men in Seattle TV [illegible] have no knowledge of plans for [illegible] a ultra-high frequency station [illegible] there. Two parties were interested but no move has been made to build the channel 20 station.

KVOS-TV is planning to expand its program service [illegible] [illegible] show is one of the features [illegible] being considered. The programs will be transmitted by microwave from Bellingham to [illegible] the new location on Orcas Island.

The only car in the world to drive 10,000 miles without stopping ...even for gas!

Mobile "service station" was specially built for non-stop test. When car entered mobile station both vehicles synchronized their speeds. Workmen fueled and serviced test car while crews changed.

10,148.3 miles, to be exact ... and every mile a gruelling test of endurance. The Morris Minor covered this distance at an average speed of 15.3 miles per hour, and at no time did the wheels stop turning or the engine fail. An ingenious mobile "service station" refueled, re-tired and re-crewed the ever moving Morris.

During the nine days and eight hours of continuous running on a circuit track, the Minor averaged 41 miles per gallon, an amazing feat since the perpetual turning was equivalent to climbing to a height of 66 miles on a road 10,000 miles long. But for the cornering strain, gas consumption would have averaged 7 miles more to the gallon.

The car was powered with the new high compression OHV overhead valve engine. This engine is now standard equipment on all Morris cars at no sacrifice to economy or decrease in price.

Your 'local' dealer invites you to drive a Morris . . . you be the judge.

Magistrate H. C. Hall in Saanich police court yesterday told the father of four young children that his family obligations were the main reason he [illegible] probation.

Ronald Polson, 1829 Cordova Bay Road, previously pleaded guilty to passing a forged cheque at a grocery store.

The accused will be required to report at regular intervals for six months to the probation officer.

The magistrate told Polson that he had hesitated to give him the chance of probation after reading a report on him. Family obligations and the fact that the accused had never been in trouble before, however, prompted the chance of probation.

In the same court, Marcel P. Jacquat, 286 Burnside, was fined $30 when he admitted a speeding charge. Police said he was clocked on East Saanich Road at 70 miles an hour.

Ronald George Douglas, 1224 Haultain, was fined $10 after he was convicted of driving a car which bore no valid registration tabs.

City Outside Staffs Vote To Strike

HUGE DEVELOPMENT SCHEME IN PREPARATION FOR ISLAND

Ballot Favors Work Tie-Up By 202 to 19

City outside workers have voted overwhelmingly in favor of striking to enforce their wage demands.

A two-day strike vote, conducted Wednesday and Thursday by the Labor Relations Board, favored a strike by a margin of 202 to 19.

Results of the vote, read to city council at the conclusion of its meeting yesterday, brought no comment from aldermen.

GARBAGE CRIPPLED

A strike by outside workers would cripple the city's garbage collection and disposal service, stop all public works projects, involve some waterworks services and halt maintenance and care of city parks.

Operation of the Johnson Street bridge for harbor traffic would also be stopped.

Ald. Robert Macmillan observed that there appeared little council could do about the issue in the face of the vote, and council adjourned.

EXECUTIVE TO MEET

Cecil Holt, president of the Civic Employees' Protective Association (outside staff), said a meeting of the union executive would be held Tuesday night to plan the next step in its dispute with council.

Asked if there was any chance of the union opening last-minute negotiations with council before a date is set for a strike, Mr. Holt said he could not say and would not be able to say at least until after Tuesday night's executive meeting.

He added that he could not say at this time when a strike would be called.

Mr. Holt declared that a general union membership meeting would be called following the executive meeting.

The union applied for a strike vote when council rejected a conciliation board award of a 3-per-cent wage increase and city payment of half the cost of MSA coverage for outside employees.

The union had requested wage increases roughly equivalent to 18 cents an hour when it opened negotiations with the city.

Council also rejected a similar conciliation board award for members of the City Hall Employees' Association (inside employees), but both sides have agreed to put the dispute to an arbitration board whose findings will be binding. Inside employees originally asked for a 7.8-per-cent wage boost.

SILENT ON PICKETS

Leaders of both unions declined to discuss the possibility of inside employees being asked to respect picket lines set up by outside employees.

Elwood Gropp, president of the inside union, said, "that will be discussed when the time comes."

Mr. Holt said he could make no statement until after the Tuesday night meeting.

Mr. Gropp said his union is still carrying on negotiations with the city.

City Solicitor A. J. Patton said outside workers could picket the City Hall and other city offices manned by inside employees, but would have no legal right to stop either employees or members of the public from entering or leaving civic offices. He said picketing would have to be "peaceful picketing."

Truck Spills Huge Logs in Hill Mishap

Millions Involved

Pulp Mill, West Coast Road Included in Premier's Plans

BY RAY BAINES
Colonist Legislative Reporter

A multi-million-dollar development program for the Alberni area, and construction of the long-sought West Coast road, was indicated by Premier W. A. C. Bennett yesterday.

The projects, the premier hinted in a speech to Port Alberni Rotarians, would include a $30,000,000 pulp mill and early construction by the government of the Alberni-Tofino road.

At the same time it was learned that the government may undertake to build the Jordan River-Port Renfrew Road link, repeatedly urged by southern Vancouver Island communities.

Although he did not say so directly, the premier implied that the construction of both roads may be dependent on the pulp mill and other industrial expansion.

CO-OPERATION NEEDED

He said the program would require the co-operation of industry with the government. This is taken to mean that preliminary opening up of the vast, unconnected areas may first be done by logging interests.

The premier said the development would be brought about if there were close co-operation between labor, industry and government.

In a second speech later in the day, the premier repeated his general remarks. He said the government was working with industry on a plan which would get a paper mill for the area and get the highway built.

Some observers felt that the premier was conveying the idea that construction of part of the Alberni-Tofino road may be made a condition of the granting of a forest management license in the area. He did not name any company.

WORKING ON PLAN

At one point he said: "I do not wish anyone to say that the premier came up here and promised this. I am just saying that we are working on a plan."

He also stated that the Social Credit party will do more in two or three years about the Tofino Road than any other party has done in the past 50 years.

About 30 miles of the Alberni-Tofino road remains to be built. Estimates place the cost between $6,000,000 and $8,000,000.

It would run from Port Alberni to Tofino by way of Sproat Lake and Long Beach and serve about 2,000 permanent residents in the Tofino-Ucluelet area. Another 2,000 people in scattered villages north along the coast to Nootka Sound would also be given easy access, by water, to the Island's road system.

The Barclay Sound Transportation Company has a boat available for conversion to ferry to serve this area. It would touch Ahousat, Sidney Inlet, Hot Springs Cove, Estevan Point, Nootka, Tahsis and Zeballos.

Take-off point for the road would be from the end of an existing road out of Port Alberni along Sproat Lake.

HIGHEST POINT

Highest point on the route would be Taylor Divide (800 feet). From there the route would follow the Kennedy River, skirting Kennedy Lake and probably connecting with a logging road which intersects the present Tofino-Ucluelet Road.

George Nicholson, long-time booster of West Coast attractions, hailed the premier's announcement as "just about the best news the West Coast has ever had — certainly the best since they took away the Maquinna."

(The CPR's Princess Maquinna was removed from the West Coast run 18 months ago. Residents complain her successor, the Princess of Alberni, and her schedule, are inadequate to the needs of the area.)

"This will be a tremendous thing for residents of the Island and for the tourist trade," Mr. Nicholson said. "This road will open up Long Beach, which is undoubtedly our greatest potential tourist attraction."

Arms Ships Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — Informed officials said Thursday an intensive search is under way for two ships suspected of carrying more Red arms for Guatemala, which have temporarily vanished.

The hunt is being carried out by the U.S. Navy and other American agencies in co-operation with friendly foreign governments.

Officials said the ships left Western European ports some time ago and have not yet shown up at ports where they were supposed to put in. For the time being, they added, these ships have vanished.

Guatemala has already received a 2,000-ton shipment of Red arms.

TREATY SOUGHT

Guatemala proposed to Honduras yesterday the immediate signing of a non-aggression pact between the two countries, UP reports from Guatemala City said.

In a lengthy message, Guatemalan Foreign Minister Guillermo Toriello suggested the treaty to Honduran Foreign Minister Edgardo Valenzuela.

"Guatemala is the victim of acts of aggression, intervention and provocation, from elements at the service of powerful interests which are not Central American," the message said.

Seeking to explain Guatemala's recent acquisition of arms from countries behind the iron curtain, Toriello told Valenzuela:

"In the face of the threat of armed invasion and of growing attempts to intevpene by force in Guatemala's internal affairs, the government was forced to obtain military materials and equipment for defense."

U.K. Honors Stravinsky

LONDON (Reuters) — A modest little man bowed politely to thunderous applause Thursday night as Britain awarded him her highest musical distinction.

Russian-born Igor Stravinsky, 71, received the Gold Medal of the Royal Philharmonic Society. In return, the world-famous composer conducted the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra in some of his own works.

The 3,500 capacity audience packed into Royal Festival Hall cheered wildly for Stravinsky, just as past audiences have welcomed the appearance before the society of Mendelsohn, Liszt, Tchaikowsky, Dvorak and Grieg.

Hill Folk Won't Talk

Feud in Dogpatch Costs Two Lives

DOGPATCH, Okla. (AP)—An old-fashioned mountaineer feud that boiled over into a double killing brought officers to this tiny community Thursday trying to unravel the mystery from closemouthed hill folk.

Billy Peters, 19, and Marshall Stroud, 24, were shot Wednesday night in a violent climax to the bad blood which began when Stroud divorced Peters' sister, Judy.

Sheriff Walter Irons said Peters entered a beer parlor and ordered his former brother-in-law down on his knees to beg for his life.

Irons said Peters fired into the pleading man's hand, then triggered the fatal shot when Stroud started to rise.

Details of what followed were hazy, the sheriff said. He theorized Stroud may have got a weapon before dying and shot his assailant. He also had a report Stroud's present wife rushed into the room and fired in defense of her husband.

Dogpatch is only a couple of beer taverns in southeastern Oklahoma near the Arkansas border.

The picturesque little settlement, in a farm and ranching area of the Kiamichi Mountains, was described by a member of the sheriff's staff as "just like in the comic strip." It is mostly hills and piney woods.

Destitute Pair Not So Poor

HAMILTON, Ont. (BUP)—While an elderly and supposedly destitute couple sat quietly in the Ontario Hospital yesterday, investigators tallied up a fortune uncovered in their ramshackle home.

Neighbors watched pityingly as Mr. and Mrs. Harry Teeter, both in their 70s, were taken to the hospital in the last two years.

They knew the Teeters as a proud, reserved old couple who refused offers of help but sometimes had to borrow bread to keep alive.

But Wednesday the same same neighbors watched investigators complete a search of the junk-filled old brick house and make at least two trips to a bank to deposit an estimated $200,000 in cash and bonds.

Bills ranging from $1 to $1,000 were discovered in flower baskets and cardboard boxes, under mattresses, and even between newspapers piled on the floor.

Communists Ask 'Where?'

U.K., France Propose Start On Indo-China Truce Lines

GENEVA (UP)—Britain and France proposed Thursday that military experts begin at once to map truce lines for Indo-China.

The Communists immediately pointed out that no one has decided where the lines should be drawn.

French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault returned from Paris with a plan opposing "partition" of Indo-China but suggesting that the far eastern area be cut up into an unspecified number of zones, some controlled by the Reds and some by French-led forces.

Bidault suggested that military experts from both sides be called here to start marking the boundaries of the zones, and the proposal was seconded by Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden.

Red China countered by renewing Communist demands for a Korea-style division of Indo-China into two parts.

Communist Foreign Minister Chou En-lai said the partitioned area should include not only the coastal state of Viet Nam — scene of most of the Indo-Chinese fighting — but also the landlocked jungle kingdoms of Laos and Cambodia.

The Chou plan already has been rejected in effect by western sources, who said it could lead only to "partition and dismemberment" of Indo-China.

The conference could reach no decision on the Indo-China issues, and the day's session adjourned after appointing a "committee of experts" to try to sort out conflicting proposals for a settlement.

Consideration of plans for the partition of Indo-China will be dropped temporarily today while the conference debates means of ending the nine-year partition of Korea.

Although Bidault did not announce details of his new proposal, it apparently envisioned a patchwork of zones like that devised by the United Nations for the partition of Palestine.

Nguyen Quoc Dinh, foreign minister of Viet Nam, warned that his compatriots will not accept partition in any form.

He demanded that both the French and the Communist plans be rejected because either would "affect the unity" of Viet Nam.

Vietminh Press Outpost

HANOI, Indo-China (AP) — Vietminh troops surrounding Yen Phu cut closer today to that key Red River Delta post only 30 miles south of Hanoi. Heavily outnumbered French Union defenders prepared for another "little Dien Bien Phu" battle.

Yen Phu guards Phu Ly, western anchor of a defense arc stretching through Nam Dinh and Thai Binh, important rice centres. The French blew up their own post at Ame, 12 miles north of Thai Binh, and pulled its 80-man garrison back to the town.

Rebel troops equal to about two divisions are massed along the Phu Ly-Thai Binh line.

Repeating tactics they used at Dien Bien Phu, the Vietminh poured mortar and machine-gun fire on Yen Phu, then set their sappers digging trenches closer to the French lines.

Route Change Seen for PGE

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Vancouver newspaper, in a front-page dispatch, said Thursday night reports were flooding the capital that the proposed West Vancouver route for the Pacific Great Eastern Railway extension may undergo "major change."

The story said Premier Bennett had been "grossly misinformed" regarding economic and other aspects of the North Vancouver-Squamish extension.

Premier Bennett was not immediately available for comment, but a meeting of PGE directors has been called for Monday.

U.S., Russia Heading For 'Fight to Finish'

NEW YORK (UP)—Adm. Robert B. Carney, chief of naval operations, said Thursday the United States soon will face a "fight to the finish" with Russia.

Carney said the nation has the same alternatives it had when the Communists invaded Korea in 1950, "but they are graver than they have ever been before."

He warned against a policy based on attempts to reach negotiated agreements with Russia.

Mr. Nicholson saw Kennedy Lake with its warm water, good fishing and gently sloping beaches, and the 10-mile stretch of nearby Long Beach, as an integrated tourist resort area.

Another tourist attraction which would be brought within easy reach is Hot Springs Cove, which is only 20 miles by boat from Tofino at the north end of the projected road. The government recently acquired a 50-acre park site at Hot Springs Cove.

Freedomites Rush RCMP

Tear Gas Used To Quell Women

GRAND FORKS (CP)—A detachment of 15 RCMP used tear gas to break up a rush of 50 stone-throwing Sons of Freedom Doukhobor women near here Thursday and arrested four on assault charges.

The four were taken to Nelson, 60 miles northeast of here, tried and sentenced to two months on each of two charges. The sentences will run concurrently.

The demonstration took place at Gilpin, a Freedomite settlement near this rail-shipping town on the international border. The police were accompanying Ralph McIntosh, former RCMP constable and now school attendance officer. McIntosh was attacked by 20 nude Sons of Freedom women Wednesday when he went to Gilpin with a proclamation ordering the women to send their children to school.

McIntosh was scratched, bruised and had his clothing torn in the Wednesday encounter.

Thursday he went back with the police, who were rushed as they left their cars.

The RCMP fired tear gas grenades into the mob.

Later, in Nelson, Inspector J. B. Harris said "it is one of the first times we've laid assault charges against Freedomite offenders, but it won't be the last. From now on they will be prosecuted. RCMP in the past has had many occasions to lay charges."

McIntosh, who formerly served with the RCMP and the now-defunct British Columbia Provincial Police, acted as a special constable for the RCMP last autumn during the disturbance created by the erection of the tent village of Polatka near here by nude-parading Sons of Freedom Doukhobors.

He was one of the chief Crown witnesses in the RCMP prosecutions which followed and which resulted in 144 going to prison for varying terms.

The women sentenced Thursday were Mrs. Mary Shertobitoff, Mrs. Mary Perepolkin, Mrs. Verna Nazareff and Mrs. Tania Verigin.

They were convicted of assaulting McIntosh and Const. Clare Provost of the RCMP.

Mr. Holt declared that a general union membership meeting would be called following the executive meeting.

The union applied for a strike vote when council rejected a conciliation board award of a 3-per-cent wage increase and city payment of half the cost of MSA coverage for outside employees.

The union had requested wage increases roughly equivalent to 18 cents an hour when it opened negotiations with the city.

Council also rejected a similar conciliation board award for members of the City Hall Employees' Association (inside employees), but both sides have agreed to put the dispute to an arbitration board whose findings will be binding. Inside employees originally asked for a 7.8-per-cent wage boost.

SILENT ON PICKETS

Leaders of both unions declined to discuss the possibility of inside employees being asked to respect picket lines set up by outside employees.

Elwood Gropp, president of the inside union, said, "that will be discussed when the time comes."

Mr. Holt said he could make no statement until after the Tuesday night meeting.

Mr. Gropp said his union is still carrying on negotiations with the city.

City Solicitor A. J. Patton said outside workers could picket the City Hall and other city offices manned by inside employees, but would have no legal right to stop either employees or members of the public from entering or leaving civic offices. He said picketing would have to be "peaceful picketing."

Burns Ignored

SUMMERLAND (CP)—A. E. Trayler, an elementary school janitor at this Okanagan Valley town, ignored painful burns from an exploding bottle of gasoline Thursday to sound the alarm that cleared children from the building.

Miss Mary Fast, teacher in a basement classroom, evacuated her students through a window. The blaze was brought under control within minutes.

Police said Trayler suffered leg and arms burns, but could not immediately determine cause of the explosion.

U.K. Honors Stravinsky

LONDON (Reuters) — A modest little man bowed politely to thunderous applause Thursday night as Britain awarded him her highest musical distinction.

Russian-born Igor Stravinsky, 71, received the Gold Medal of the Royal Philharmonic Society. In return, the world-famous composer conducted the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra in some of his own works.

The 3,500 capacity audience packed into Royal Festival Hall cheered wildly for Stravinsky just as past audiences have welcomed the appearance before the society of Mendelsohn, Liszt, Tchaikowsky, Dvorak and Grieg.

Hill Folk Won't Talk

Feud in Dogpatch Costs Two Lives

DOGPATCH, Okla. (AP)—An old-fashioned mountaineer feud that boiled over into a double killing brought officers to this tiny community Thursday trying to unravel the mystery from closemouthed hill folk.

Billy Peters, 19, and Marshall Stroud, 24, were shot Wednesday night in a violent climax to the bad blood which began when Stroud divorced Peters' sister, Judy.

Sheriff Walter Irons said Peters entered a beer parlor and ordered his former brother-in-law down on his knees to beg for his life.

Irons said Peters fired into the pleading man's hand, then triggered the fatal shot when Stroud started to rise.

Details of what followed were hazy, the sheriff said. He theorized Stroud may have got a weapon before dying and shot his assailant. He also had a report Stroud's present wife rushed into the room and fired in defense of her husband.

Dogpatch is only a couple of beer taverns in southeastern Oklahoma near the Arkansas border.

The picturesque little settlement, in a farm and ranching area of the Kiamichi Mountains, was described by a member of the sheriff's staff as "just like in the comic strip." It is mostly hills and piney woods.

Communists Ask 'Where?'

U.K., France Propose Start On Indo-China Truce Lines

GENEVA (UP)—Britain and France proposed Thursday that military experts begin at once to map truce lines for Indo-China.

The Communists immediately pointed out that no one has decided where the lines should be drawn.

French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault returned from Paris with a plan opposing "partition" of Indo-China but suggesting that the far eastern area be cut up into an unspecified number of zones, some controlled by the Reds and some by French-led forces.

Bidault suggested that military experts from both sides be called here to start marking the boundaries of the zones, and the proposal was seconded by Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden.

Red China countered by renewing Communist demands for a Korea-style division of Indo-China into two parts.

Communist Foreign Minister Chou En-lai said the partitioned area should include not only the coastal state of Viet Nam — scene of most of the Indo-Chinese fighting — but also the landlocked jungle kingdoms of Laos and Cambodia.

The Chou plan already has been rejected in effect by western sources, who said it could lead only to "partition and dismemberment" of Indo-China.

The conference could reach no decision on the Indo-China issues, and the day's session adjourned after appointing a "committee of experts" to try to sort out conflicting proposals for a settlement.

Consideration of plans for the partition of Indo-China will be dropped temporarily today while the conference debates means of ending the nine-year partition of Korea.

Although Bidault did not announce details of his new proposal, it apparently envisioned a patchwork of zones like that devised by the United Nations for the partition of Palestine.

Vietminh Press Outpost

HANOI, Indo-China (AP) — Vietminh troops surrounding Yen Phu cut closer today to that key Red River Delta post only 30 miles south of Hanoi. Heavily outnumbered French Union defenders prepared for another "little Dien Bien Phu" battle.

Yen Phu guards Phu Ly, western anchor of a defense arc stretching through Nam Dinh and Thai Binh, important rice centres. The French blew up their own post at Ame, 12 miles north of Thai Binh, and pulled its 80-man garrison back to the town.

Rebel troops equal to about two divisions are massed along the Phu Ly-Thai Binh line.

Nanaimo MP Renews Plea

Coast Guard Ruled Out

OTTAWA (CP)—The government Thursday night rejected a renewed request in the Commons for a separate Canadian coast guard.

Transport Minister Chevrier said no such force is planned, noting that the RCAF and marine agencies co-operate in a rescue service for ships in distress on the coasts, the St. Lawrence River and the Great Lakes.

He said a government committee set up to study the question about three years ago reported it would cost $9,330,000 to establish a coast guard and another $3,280,000 a year to run it.

Mr. Chevrier was speaking in reply to Colin Cameron (CCF, Nanaimo) who asked for a coast guard and said existing facilities have proved inadequate on the B.C. coast in recent shipping disasters.

Repulsive, Ex-Jail Surgeon Says

Hanging Branded Inhuman

OTTAWA (CP)—A former jail surgeon who witnessed four hangings in Welland, Ont., said Thursday it is an inhuman and repulsive form of execution and should be replaced by electrocution or lethal gas.

Dr. Malcolm S. MacLean said the spectacle of a convicted murderer going to the gallows is too much even for hard-bitten police officers. He said he himself could not get back to his normal work for three or four days after the double hanging of a man and wife.

Hangings had no place in an enlightened society, he told the Commons Senate committee on capital or corporal punishment, although he believed capital punishment was the correct punishment for particularly violent murders.

Dr. MacLean, now in private practice, said that after talking to condemned persons he believes capital punishment is not a deterrent to crime. The waiting period between sentence and execution was a greater punishment than the actual execution. There was a feeling life was extinguished before the execution took place.

Asked by Ross Thatcher (CCF, Moose Jaw-Lake Centre) if he believes corporal punishment is a brutal form of punishment, Dr. MacLean said:

"I'm a gentle type myself; I believe it is."

However, he said he has no views about the abolition or retention of corporal punishment. He said that in some cases of strapping he attended, he had to order a stop to the punishment because of the mental effect on the prisoners. He was called on to stop bleeding in cases where there were more than five strokes.

He urged executions be conducted at a central place in all provinces instead of in county jails. This procedure now is left to the discretion of provincial authorities.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

NOW a scientist claims that queen bees control their subjects by turning them into dope addicts.

Dr. Colin Butler, head of a bee research project in Britain, announced his findings in a new book: "The World of the Honeybee."

Dr. Butler identified the dope as "queen substance." It is a kind of wax that covers the queen's body. Worker bees lick it off, and keep returning for more.

This is the best news of the week. Bees have long been smugly parading themselves as examples of the duller virtues: hard work, organization and community spirit.

These pompous insects led us to believe that they never wasted time. All their thoughts were for the next generation. They had a place for everything, and everything in its place.

Well, they never fooled me. I had a hunch all along that there was something phony about those bees. They were too good to be true.

My hunch was right. At last they have been unmasked before the world as rakes and debauchees.

Drug addict! Hophead! Those are the words I intend to yell at the next bee that buzzes past my ear, putting on its big hard-working act.

How doth the little busy bee improve each shining hour? I'm glad you asked that question. The little busy bee has never improved a shining hour in her life.

She spends her time skulking around the nasturtiums, a depraved, hollow-cheeked denizen of the insect skidroad, with fuzzy bags under her eyes, waiting for some drone to take her in to Queenie for a "fix."

Now I am waiting for science to debunk a few more of Nature's heroes and villains.

The ant, who spends so much time denouncing the grasshopper for idleness and union activities and pointing to his own diligent, thrifty habits, may well turn out to be a sluggard who inherited his money.

The hare may turn out to be a former Olympic distance runner who was wounded in the war; and the beaver may be exposed as a secret drinker.

* * *

My informant swears that the following story about a self-taught driver is true.

During the late war a man over military age was offered a job with one of the outlying Greater Victoria police forces. He discussed the matter with a young man who was already in the same force.

"I don't know whether I could get along in the force," he said. "I can't drive a car."

"That doesn't matter," the policeman said. "I couldn't drive either, when I joined. You know how I learned? I went to a quiet street and found some parked cars with keys. I got in one and drove it around. I did this several times until I got to be fairly good.

"But once I was driving a borrowed car like that, and it got out of control and ran into a tree. I just phoned the station and said I had found an abandoned car smashed up."

The policeman told about his feat with every sign of pride, my informant says.

I doubt, somehow, that this self-taught driver is still in the force.

Eat and Grow Younger

Meat Bones Too Valuable Ever To Be Thrown Away

This is another in a series of daily articles from the best-selling book, "Eat and Grow Younger," which provides invaluable information on nutrition, and one of the simplest and most effective of diets. By following the tenets set out here, you can literally eat and grow younger.

BY LELORD KORDEL

MEAT BROTH (BASIC RECIPE)

Never throw away a meat bone, cooked or uncooked, or [illegible] soups and broths. This holds good also for meat trimmings, or leftover bits of cooked meat.

In other words, save all bones, fat and trimmings from meat or poultry. Bring them home with you; don't let the butcher keep what is the foundation of a nourishing broth for your family. If you're not going to make broth for a day or so, keep the bones and trimmings in the refrigerator, adding to them the cooked bones and unused portions of cooked meats or a chicken carcass.

Then when broth day comes, add all your "savings" to about one quart of cold water, plus about one tablespoon of lemon juice or wine vinegar in order to dissolve the calcium from the bones, as well as to give a piquant flavor to the broth.

Bring slowly to a boil, skim off any excess fat, and allow to simmer, covered for at least an hour, adding half teaspoon of salt and whatever herbs are desired for seasoning.

A splendid soup seasoning is an herb salt that contains something like 14 different properly blended herbs, plus a good grade of salt. If the meat flavor of the broth is not pronounced enough to suit the taste, add about ¼ to ½ teaspoon of meat extract or a bouillon cube. You can make up this stock and have it in the refrigerator, ready for use at any time, merely by having the forethought to make use of uncooked or leftover bones and meat trimmings as they accumulate.

I don't know why it is, but a recipe calling for "stock" usually frightens most cooks away; perhaps because they don't have such an item on hand. But the kitchen-wise cook knows that it's no trick to have stock or broth on hand at all times, for serving plain as a before meal appetite stimulant, or for incorporating into other delicious soup recipes.

Whenever it's necessary for you to seek a substitute dish for meat (which I hope is not too often), for the sake of your long-lasting youth don't turn to the "noodle and spaghetti" section of your cookbook.

As I pointed out earlier, starch can never be a safe substitute for protein.

Here are some substitute meat dishes which contain high-grade protein, and which can well be adopted into your menu-planning as a means of easing up on your budget.

The following recipes, together with the egg and cheese recipes and the seed cereal recipes, are the only protein substitutes for meat that you can schedule in a menu with the full assurance that you're not completely shortchanging yourself and your family on health for that day.

First we'll take a look at all the delicious ways in which sunflower seeds (a complete protein, you'll remember) can be called into service as a pinch hitter for meat.

SUNFLOWER ROAST

1 cup hulled sunflower seeds.
1 cup whole-grain bread crumbs.
1 tbsp. sunflower seed meal.
1 egg.
2 tsp. meat extract paste.
5 tbsp. chopped leeks or chives (onion may be used, if tolerated).
3 tsp. chopped parsley.
2 tbsp. cooking oil or butter.
1 tbsp. lemon juice.
Pinch each of thyme, sweet marjoram, sweet basil, summer savory, meat or chicken stock or broth made from soup cubes.

Saute the chopped leeks or chives in the oil or butter. Mix the coarsely ground sunflower seeds with the bread crumbs, herbs and sunflower seed meal. Add the sauteed leeks, well-beaten egg, lemon juice and meat extract which has been melted in enough stock to moisten so the mixture can be molded into a firm loaf.

Place in a greased loaf pan, dot with pieces of butter or sprinkle with grated cheese. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 40 to 50 minutes, or until the centre of the roast is done. Serve with a tomato or brown sauce.

This meat substitute has seen hundreds of Britons through their "austerity days" of little or no meat. It makes a tasty, nutlike loaf that is equally good hot or cold. Try serving it with a tossed green salad and a fruit dessert.

SUNSHINE BURGER

1 cup of sunflower seed meal.
3 finely grated carrots.
½ cup chopped celery.
2 tbsp. finely chopped onion or leeks (optional).
1 tsp. chopped parsley.
1 tbsp. cooking oil or melted butter.
Salt to taste.
¼ cup milk (garlic-flavored).
Pinch of sweet basil.

Combine all the ingredients with enough of the milk so they may be molded into patties about ½-inch thick. Place in a shallow oiled baking pan, and bake until brown on both sides. These patties are good either hot or cold, and make a good protein food for a lunch box. While hot they may be served with a butter sauce. For variety add 2 tablespoons chopped ripe or stuffed olives, and 1 tablespoon grated Italian cheese.

Mount Newton School To Get Higher Status

Mount Newton Junior High School will be elevated to a junior-senior high school in September, G. L. Chatterton, chairman of School District 63's school board's building by-law committee, said last night.

A $1,460,000 school loan by-law to be presented to ratepayers on Saturday includes an expenditure of $140,000 for the enlargement of Mt. Newton High School.

The other two senior-junior high schools in the district will be continued and will be enlarged according to the by-law, which provides a $240,000 expenditure at North Saanich and a $107,000 expenditure at Royal Oak.

Mr. Chatterton last night explained some statements made by Reeve Sydney Pickles at a Wednesday night meeting.

"Mr. Pickles was talking about double taxation," he said. "He claimed it was double taxation because the government pays half the school costs, and that the government half comes out of our pockets in any case."

"The point overlooked," continued Mr. Chatterton, "is that other school districts throughout the province, in passing their by-laws, are getting this 50 per cent from the government. So if we don't pass our by-law, we are helping to pay for other people's schools in other school districts while our children suffer from lack of accommodation."

The Hound of the Baskervilles

BY SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE

(Published by arrangement with the estate of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. World rights reserved. Illustrations copyrighted, 1954, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.).

Dr. Watson is investigating for Sherlock Holmes the weird death of Sir Charles Baskerville and trying to protect the heir to the title, Sir Henry. He is sizing things up at Baskerville Hall.

CHAPTER VI

The fresh beauty of the following morning did something to effact from our minds the grim impression which had been left upon both of us by our first experience of Baskerville Hall. As Sir Henry and I sat at breakfast the sunlight flooded in through the high mullioned windows, throwing watery patches of color from the coats of arms which covered them.

"I guess it is ourselves and not the house that we have to blame," said the baronet. "We were tired with our journey and chilled by our drive, so we took a grey view of the place."

"And yet it was entirely a question of imagination," I declared. "Did you happen to hear someone, a woman I think, sobbing in the night?"

"That is curious, for when I was half asleep I did fancy that I heard something of the sort. I waited quite a time, but there was no more of it, so I concluded that it was all a dream."

"I heard it distinctly, and I am sure that it was really the sob of a woman."

He rang for Barrymore promptly and asked him whether he could account for our experience. It seemed to me that the pallid features of the butler turned a shade paler still as he listened to his master's question.

"There are only two women in the house, Sir Henry," he answered. "One is the scullery-maid, who sleeps in the other wing. The other is my wife, and I can answer for it that the sound could not have come from her."

And yet he lied as he said it, for it chanced that after breakfast I met Mrs. Barrymore in the long corridor with the sun full upon her face. She was a large impassive, heavy-featured woman with a stern set expression of mouth. But her telltale eyes were red and glanced at me from between swollen lids. It was she, then, who wept in the night, and if she did so her husband must know it. Yet he had taken the obvious risk of discovery in declaring that it was not so. Why had he done this? And why did she weep so bitterly?

Already around this pale-faced, handsome, black-bearded man there was gathering an atmosphere of mystery and gloom. It was he who had been the first to discover the body of Sir Charles, and we had only his word for all the circumstances which led up to the old man's death. Was it possible that it was Barrymore, after all, whom we had seen in the cab in Regent Street? The beard might well have been the same.

How could I settle the point? Obviously the first thing to do was to see the Grimpen postmaster and find whether the test telegram had really been placed in Barrymore's own hands. Be the answer what it might, I should at least have something to report to Holmes.

Sir Henry had numerous papers to examine after breakfast, so that the time was propitious for my excursion. It was a pleasant walk of four miles along the edge of the moor, leading me at last to a small gray hamlet in which two larger buildings, which proved to be the inn and the house of Dr. Mortimer, stood high above the rest. The postmaster, who was also the village grocer, had a clear recollection of the telegram.

"Certainly, sir," said he, "I had the telegram delivered to Mr. Barrymore exactly as directed."

"Who delivered it?"

"My boy here. James, you delivered that telegram to Mr. Barrymore at the Hall last week, did you not?"

"Yes, father, I delivered it."

"Into his own hands?" I asked.

"Well, he was up in the loft at the time, so that I could not put it into his own hands, but I gave it to Mrs. Barrymore and she promised to deliver it at once."

It seemed hopeless to pursue the inquiry any farther then. It was clear that, in spite of Holmes's ruse, we had no proof that Barrymore had not been in London all the time. But what interest could he have in persecuting the Baskerville family? I thought of the strange warning clipped out of the leading article of The Times. Was that his work or was it possibly the doing of someone who was bent upon counteracting his schemes?

Garden Notes

Dog Repellents Hard To Find

BY M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

At the close of the gardening season last year, I made a solemn vow that there would be no more experiments undertaken in our garden. Following the episode of the sugar spray, which was supposed to make our salvias bloom but instead brought a plague of wasps, and that business of using fish meal as a fertilizer, after which every cat in our neighborhood staked a prospecting claim in our garden, I decided that we would be middle-of-the-road fuddy-duddies, sticking strictly to the tried and proved techniques in gardening.

I should have known better. After repeated and fruitless attempts to give up smoking, I should have realized that I have no will power, so here we are right in the middle of another experiment.

DOG REPELLANT

This time, it's a search for an effective dog repellant!

You see, we have a very charming neighbor next door by the name of Jan. She is a Boxer—the oldest breed of dog known to mankind, and bred especially in ancient days for the protection of the trading caravans in China—and she is a true aristocrat, with a sunny personality and impeccable manners. But—brother! Is she ever popular with the boys!

At any hour of the day or night our front lawn is patrolled by a picket line of love-sick swains, all leering at Jan's house.

The things they are doing in our garden couldn't be described even in a current best-seller pocket book. Our place is rapidly taking on a resemblance to Act 1, Scene 1, of "Tobacco Road."

WOEFULLY SILENT

Something had to be done. We consulted all the authorities in our garden library, and while they listed repellants for every known type of insect, they were woefully silent on the subject of anything distasteful to the canine tribe.

With such a gaping hole in the body of garden knowledge, my family and I decided it was our duty to run some tests, and we are going about it in true scientific fashion, with randomized and numbered test plots, and using every preparation which promised any hope of success.

TEST PLOTS

Test plot No. 1, a telegraph pole, and No. 2, a fire hydrant on our boulevard, have both been sprayed with strong house-hold ammonia. Test plot No. 3 is a dwarf Pfitzer Juniper, with the lower foliage already turning yellow from its ordeal, and this one was treated with a patented preparation called "Dog-Zoff." No. 4, a small Blue Spruce, has been sprayed with a chemical called "Chaperone" which smells horrible even to us, and is guaranteed to be even more repulsive to canine nostrils.

No. 5 is one of our lawn trees which seems to possess a peculiar attraction for our visitors, and its lower trunk has been sprayed with a strong solution of Black Leaf 40.

GUARD REAR AREAS

As a control, and for purposes of comparison, we have posted our 10-year-old David on the back porch with a low-powered Little Daisy air rifle to protect our rear areas.

While the returns are not all in yet, a preliminary survey of results would indicate that direct action with conventional weapons is definitely superior to chemical warfare. A good sting on the flank with a BB shot seems to be a most effective deterrent, especially when the subject is a little off-balance.

Food Shortage Over for India

MADRAS, India (AP)—India reported Thursday she has all the wheat and rice she needs—and the food crisis which has plagued the young republic ever since the Second World War is virtually over.

Deputy Food and Agriculture Minister M. V. Keeshappa said India, which for several years has had to import rice from Burma, is now producing enough for her own needs and will soon be exporting rice to West Europe.

Hand fans made of palm leaves were used by the early Assyrians and Egyptians.
